France, Soviet Union Agree To Launch Indochina Talks

Peace Sessions Will Be Started This Weekend

GENEVA, May 5 (AP)—France and the Soviet Union agreed today to start peace talks on Indochina Friday if possible and certainly by Saturday.

Agreement was reached as French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault decided to ride out his country's Cabinet crisis in Geneva. Bidault's decision against being present for the vote of confidence tomorrow in Parliament was taken as a sign of confidence the Cabinet would survive.

Jean Chauvel, French ambassador in Switzerland, spent an hour with Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko discussing the impending peace parley. Both agreed it should start as soon as feasible.

Vietnam Delegation On Way

Later Chauvel reported the results of his conversations to British and U. S. delegations. It appeared that only the belated arrival of delegates from the Associated States of Indochina was holding up the peace meeting.

A Vietnamese delegation of three, including Deputy Premier Nguyen Trung Vinh, Foreign Minister Nguyen Quoc Dinh and Minister for Democratization Nguyen Dac Khe, will arrive tomorrow morning by train from Paris.

Prince Khammao, high commissioner of Laos in Paris, is coming on the same train. Nong Kimmy, Cambodian ambassador in Washington, is expected in Geneva Friday.

As the peace talks neared, French sources said "everything possible" was being done to secure a truce in the bloody fighting in Indochina.

Truce Talks Hampered

But negotiations for a truce to remove the wounded at Dien Bien Phu were hampered by the fact that the French want to deal indirectly with the Vietminh regime through the Soviet delegation. The Russians want the negotiations conducted directly with the Vietminh.

Marc Jacquet, French minister for the affairs of the Associated States, was expected to reach Geneva by plane tomorrow—several hours before the vote in the French Parliament.

A British-Soviet meeting over Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's dinner table tonight was the only other contact between East and West as the work of the Geneva conference to unite Korea came to a near standstill. Plenary sessions have been recessed until Friday.

Navy's Security Declared Tight

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, said today Navy security checks are as tight as it can make them—and were so even before Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's Army probe.

Carney addressed a luncheon of the Public Relations Society of America, and answered a number of questions afterward.

He was asked if the Navy made "any tightening of security checks" as a result of the Ft. Monmouth probe by the Internal Security subcommittee headed by the Wisconsin Republican senator.

"No, we have not," declared the admiral.

"They were as tight as we could make them . . .Within the limits of the investigative resources we had, we were doing the most we could to make damn sure we were locating and getting rid of the subversives. We have no place for them."

Carney also asserted his belief that a lot of valuable information is being withheld unnecessarily from the public.

For instance, he said, he feels that information "we have regarding the emergence of the Russians, in their effort to become a maritime power, should be made thoroughly public in our country."

Train Car Catches Fire

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, May 5 (AP)—The dining car of the Paris-to-Athens Orient Express burst into flames today as the train sped southward from Belgrade.

Passengers leaped to safety from windows of the smoke-filled car after the train was brought to a halt.

Vietminh Within Grenade Distance Of French Troops

HANOI, Indochina, May 5 (AP)—Hordes of Vietminh troops dug new trenches and foxholes today within grenade hurling distance of Dien Bien Phu's dwindling barricades. A few hundred yards away, more French Union paratroops and tons of supplies dropped through sheets of rebel antiaircraft fire to bolster the weary defenders.

Despite dense tropical rain, Flying Boxcars, piloted by American civilians, and Dakota transports swooped low to drop their precious human and materiel cargoes into the beleaguered bastion's heart. The northwestern Indochinese plains fortress has been holding out against massive Communist-led attacks for nearly two months.

New Airlift Started

As fervent preparations were pushed on both sides of the barricades for what may be the final rebel drive, U.S. Air Force Globemasters winged from Southern France with 450 French army and air force technicians bound for Indochina. In a similar airlift three weeks ago, U.S. planes took 1,000 French paratroops to Indochina.

The Vietminh "mole men," using picks, shovels, knives and their hands, bored in toward the maze of barbed wire protecting the shrinking French perimeter on all sides. Heedless of the pelting seasonal rains that have turned the area into seas of mud, the rebels narrowed to 40 yards the distance separating them from the barricades.

Red, French Claim Conflict

A broadcast by communist China's Peiping radio claimed the rebels have smashed within 400 yards of defending Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries' command post at the center of the bastion. This would bring the post well within range of rebel rifle fire. The French said the rebels were within 600 yards.

Steel Union Wage Policy Unit Will Chart Strategy

PITTSBURGH, May 5 (AP)—The powerful Wage Policy Committee of the CIO United Steelworkers opens a two-day session here tomorrow to chart the union's course in coming contract negotiations with the basic steel industry.

The union which bargains for about 600,000 workers in basic steel plants across the nation, is scheduled to begin negotiating May 18 with U.S. Steel Corp., the country's No. 1 steel producer, and usually the pace-setter in union-labor policy.

Big steel set the date after USW President David J. McDonald requested an early meeting to discuss "wages, pensions, insurance and all conditions of employment." The current pact expires June 30.

Other firms in the basic industry are expected to schedule negotiations with the union within the next few days.

The 170-member Wage Policy Committee will undoubtedly include demands for a wage increase in any plan drafted at the sessions. It also will spell out what is wanted in the way of insurance and pension improvements.

But the big union, which has won seven rounds of wage increases for its members since World War II will be in a different position at the bargaining table. It must negotiate with an industry which is feeling the pinch of the first business lag in several years.

Most steel observers feel that the industry's decline in production will weaken the union's position in making demands for a new contract. Few observers believe the steelworkers will strike to enforce demands.

General Hails Army Sports Program At Coddling Probe

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—The Army threw its backing behind its widespread sports program today in the face of argument by a House committee that the Army has been "coddling" big name athletes.

Big time baseball, basketball and football games between Army posts are "morale builders, even for the spectators," Brig. Gen. Herbert P. Powell told a House Armed Services subcommittee.

But Powell and some of the committee members seemed to be in disagreement over what "preferential treatment" amounts to.

Chairman Hess (R-Ohio) said "It appears the Army has pleaded guilty" to reports that special favors had been given name athletes called into the Army.

Powell told the House members Army regulations specifically forbid preferential treatment.

He conceded it is "possible that the policy may have been violated" in some cases and that post commanders who give preferential treatment to athletes will face "appropriate action."

This could amount to anything from a reprimand to a court martial, Powell told reporters.

The hearing got into a tizzy over whether the sessions should be open to the public. Rep. Nelson (R-Me) and others maintained the publicity might prove harmful to the 10 athletes whose cases are now under scrutiny.

But after an hour of closed door conferences on the matter, Hess announced that the hearings, which are to resume tomorrow afternoon will be open to the public.

The 10 athletes are to be notified of the proceedings and told that if they care to testify the committee will pay their expenses to Washington. They will be permitted also to send in statements for committee consideration.

Juin Is Scolded, Keeps NATO Post

PARIS, May 5 (AP)—Marshal Alphonse Juin has accepted a public scolding from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council for talking out of turn and will remain Allied commander in Central Europe, the NATO Council announced tonight.

The outspoken marshal told a reserve officers' group in March the proposed European Defense community, which NATO says it supports without reservations, would be too unwieldy and should be replaced. Called on the carpet by Premier Laniel to explain his utterances, Juin left the Premier and Defense Minister Rene Pleven waiting for him. The Cabinet subsequently dismissed the marshal from the top posts of advisor to the government on strategy and vice president of France's Security Council.

Ike Rejects Idea U. S. Suffered Big Defeat At Geneva

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—President Eisenhower today praised John Foster Dulles as the greatest secretary of state in his memory and sharply rejected talk of a major U. S. diplomatic defeat at the Geneva conference on Asia.

No one, the President said, can count a battle lost while it is still going on.

Pledging unquualified support for Dulles, who flew back from Geneva yesterday, Eisenhower told his news conference the United States will continue to work for a collective security arrangement for Southeast Asia. Dulles' effort to obtain united action to stem communism in that area have so far been unsuccessful. For one thing, the British decided to wait until the Geneva conference on the future of Indochina and Korea is over.

"No Surprises" Produced

But Eisenhower declined to take the view that Dulles has suffered any defeat. As for the Geneva conference, now nine days old, the President said it "has produced no surprises. The expressed fears of some have proved unfounded."

Speaking with emphasis, the President thus discounted qualms expressed in advance by some Congress members that Dulles, in dealing with the Russians and Chinese Communists around the conference table at Geneva, might "appease" the Soviet bloc.

Eisenhower made his statement shortly after conferring with Dulles at the White House amid signs that a storm over the success or failure of Dulles' efforts at Geneva was blowing up on Capitol Hill.

Some Demos Criticize Dulles

Some Democrats have been openly critical of Dulles and were reported ready to pepper him with questions about his diplomatic maneuvers involving Korea and the Indochina war crisis.

Sen. Thomas C. Hennings (D-Mo) said in a speech at Haverford, Pa., yesterday that Dulles went to Geneva "riding the crest of a big bluff" and the United States suffered a "diplomatic defeat" there.

Dulles himself appeared in cheerful spirits as he emerged from his talk with Eisenhower. Talking with newsmen, Dulles was asked to comment on suggestions that he had suffered "a major diplomatic defeat" at Geneva.

With a chuckle, Dulles replied: "I don't understand what's happened there (at Geneva) which is alleged to constitute the defeat."

French Technicians Bound For Indochina Aboard USAF Planes

MARSEILLE, France, May 5 (AP)—Six U.S. Air Force Globemaster transport planes took off from Istres Field here today with 450 French army and air force technicians bound for Indochina.

This was the second of a series of airlifts provided by the U.S. Air Force for French reinforcements urgently needed in the critical war in Indochina. The first on April 18—called "Operation Bali High"—carried about 1,000 French paratroopers from Orly Field, Paris, to Indochina, a flight of 8,500 miles.

In Paris, a spokesman for the French government said today's flight did not indicate an emergency transport of combat troops. He said it simply marked the use of the U.S. Air Force for transport in the relief and replacement of French technicians in Indochina.

M'Carthy-Army Probe "Disgrace," HST Says

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman is quoted in Newsweek magazine today as calling the McCarthy-Army hearing the "sort of thing that should be left to Barnum & Bailey."

In labelling the hearing "disgraceful," Truman told Newsweek:

Sen. McCarthy On Witness Stand

Paraguay Army Units Reported Staging Revolt

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 5 (AP)—Reports here said today army units in Paraguay staged a midnight uprising in Asuncion aimed at overthrowing the government of President Federico Chaves.

The reports, which lacked direct confirmation, said loyal government forces succeeded in quelling the uprising in the Paraguayan capital. They said Police Chief Dr. Roberto L. Petit was killed in the battle with the rebels.

A well informed source in Buenos Aires said this afternoon the situation in the Paraguayan capital was "uncertain." This indicated the movement against the Chaves government appeared still active.

General Reported Killed

Unconfirmed rumors circulating here said several Paraguayan government leaders were killed in the early-morning fighting including Gen. Alfredo Stroesner, commander in chief of the armed forces.

These and sketchy radio broadcasts from inside that central South American country indicated unrest had broken the comparative calm of nearly five years—longest period of peace in Paraguay's long, bloody history.

A broadcast from Radio Telco a private station at Asuncion, said a division of cavalry—normally about 500 mounted men in the Paraguayan army—had risen against the Chaves' regime. Loyal troops and police rallied to the government's defense, the station added.

Street Rioting Reported

A Branaiff Airways plane was ordered to bypass its scheduled stop at Asuncion and fly on from here to Lima Peru via Bolivia. Passengers who had booked seats at Asuncion were grounded.

Other reports reaching here said rioting had broken out in the streets of Asuncion — scene of many previous revolutions—and the government had declared a nationwide state of siege.

These advices said all roads leading into the capital had been blocked. Telephone communications from outside the country were cut off.

Britain To Talk United Action If Parley Fails

LONDON, May 5 (AP)—Britain has agreed to join early Allied talks to consider taking united military action in Indochina if the Geneva peace negotiations fail, American and British sources said tonight.

The American-proposed parley of air, land and sea force chiefs is expected to take place within the next three weeks in Washington.

Informants said it would have a dual purpose: to produce plans to underwrite any sort of political settlement in Indochina that might come out of Geneva talks; to save Indochina from being overrun by the Communist-led Vietminh in case the peace talks fail.

Unscheduled Stop

ROME, May 5 (AP)—A Pakistan international airliner Constellation with 60 passengers aboard made an unscheduled stop at Ciampino Airport tonight when one engine failed on its flight from Cairo to London.

Parakeet Sucked Up Cleaner Hose; Only Pride Hurt

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — Chuck's tail feathers went sailing up the vacuum cleaner hose. Chuck went with them.

Dennis Jenkins, 7, cleaning up spilled seed beneath Chuck the parakeet's cage, hollered for help.

His mother, Mrs. Florence Mulroy, his sister, Daphne, 3, and a couple of neighbors responded.

Should they reverse the vacuum motor and blow Chuck back out? No, they decided, they'd have to get expert help.

They uncoupled the hose and rushed it to an appliance store. Chuck came out, ruffled and indignant. He was in fine feather today after a night's rest.

President Says Feud Has Cost Nation Prestige

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the McCarthy-Army row has cost the United States a loss of international prestige and, to some extent, of national self respect.

He hopes, he told his news conference, that the incident will provide advantages that are at least comparable to those losses.

He took occasion also, in answering questions, to say he knows nothing that would cause him to lose confidence in Secretary of the Army Stevens' administration of the Army. On that basis, the President said, he would back Stevens to the limit.

Stevens has been testifying for 10 days before the Senate Investigations subcommittee about alleged efforts of Chairman McCarthy (R-Wis) and his staff to obtain special treatment for Army Pvt. G. David Schine, and McCarthy's countercharge that Schine was held as a "hostage" to hamper his subcommittee's investigation of the Army.

Mitchell Warns Demos Of GOP 'Smear Tactics'

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell told Democrats today to be on guard against "political indictments" at the hands of Atty. Gen. Brownell and "smear and fear" tactics by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) in the campaign for control of Congress.

Asserting that the Republicans plan to mix a "big money" drive with smear tactics, Mitchell urged members of the Democratic National Committee not to be overconfident even though he said their party holds a "genuine advantage" over the Republicans "in the basic confidence of the voters and on the major issues of the day.

Roosevelt Case Stand Backed

Before Mitchell spoke, the party's Executive Committee unanimously backed his withdrawal of support from James Roosevelt and Rep. Condon (D-Calif) in their campaigns to win party nominations for Congress in California.

Roosevelt, sued by his wife for separate maintenance, has been accused of misconduct in sensational charges. Condon waived his congressional immunity to deny charges of Communist association.

There were 86 national committee members present or represented by proxy for the rally, to be climaxed by a $100 a plate Jefferson-Jackson dinner tomorrow night.

"Overconfidence" Is "Danger"

Mitchell said things looked so good now for Democratic candidates that "Our greatest danger is over confidence."

He said the Republicans will supplement a "big money" campaign budget of $3,800,000 with "smear and fear tactics."

"We have already seen the campaign across the country entitled '20 Years of Treason,'" Mitchell declared. "We are informed that the junior senator from Wisconsin (McCarthy) is booked for three more months of speeches, but we are told that that is without the knowledge of the President."

Senate Will Limit Debate, Start T-H Voting Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — The Senate agreed today to limit debate and to start voting Friday on proposed amendments to the Taft-Hartley labor law. Republican Leader Knowland of California said he hopes to complete Senate action on the measure by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Elsewhere in Congress:

ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY—The House prepared for its first vote in 20 years on U. S. participation in the St. Lawrence Seaway, with administration forces predicting approval of the bill already passed by the Senate. The key vote will come tomorrow on a proposal to require private sale of 105 million dollars of Seaway bonds, rather than permitting their sale to the U. S. Treasury.

HOUSE MEMBERS — A Senate Judiciary subcommittee approved a proposed constitutional amendment to permit governors of states to fill vacancies in the House of Representatives in case an atomic attack or other calamity should create more than 145 empty seats.

MCCARTHY-ARMY — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) got into the witness chair in the Senate hearing over his row with Pentagon officials to tell about a secret letter. He swore he acted in good faith in first calling it a letter from the FBI to the Army, although it turned out to be quotations from an FBI report. McCarthy said he got it from an Army intelligence officer, but refused to name him.

The document warned of the danger of Russian espionage at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. McCarthy said the Army had ample warning but delayed action. Secretary of the Army Stevens said he acted promptly to have Ft. Monmouth investigated.

Senator Takes Witness Stand In Row Inquiry

Refuses To Identify Man Who Gave Him Secret FBI Material

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy took the witness stand today and, in dramatic sworn testimony, refused to name an Army intelligence officer who, he said, gave him secret FBI material warning of Russian spy danger at Ft. Monmouth, N.J.

Roaring his refusal before a tense throng of spectators at a televised hearing, the Wisconsin senator told Army Counsel Joseph N. Welch:

"Neither you nor anybody else will get me to violate the confidence of loyal people. . . . You can try until doomsday."

Welch reminded McCarthy of his oath to "tell the whole truth" and implored him to do so. But McCarthy stuck to his position and was upheld by Sen. Mundt (R-SD), acting chairman of the investigating subcommittee.

Highlight Of Hearing

McCarthy's first appearance as witness provided one of the highlights of the 10-day-old airing of his row with high Pentagon officials.

It was McCarthy's day in another respect, too.

He established, through FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, that the secret material in question was a condensed version—mostly word for word—of a spy warning the FBI sent to Army intelligence Jan. 26, 1951.

The Army lawyer had challenged McCarthy's version of this material—in the form of a letter purporting to be from Hoover—as a "perfect phoney."

Hoover sent word through a subcommittee aide that he never wrote such a letter. But after a recheck the aide, Robert A. Collier, said Hoover told him the letter was taken almost verbatim from a much longer FBI memo issued on that same 1951 day.

Then arose the question of where McCarthy got the letter.

Jenkins Calls McCarthy

With a showmanlike flourish, Special Counsel Ray H. Jenkins called out the name of his next witness: "Sen. McCarthy!"

There was a gasp from the standing-room-only audience.

McCarthy glowered at Jenkins—said he'd be glad to take the stand but insisted on one thing: That all other senators in the inquiry be made to testify under oath, too, on the sources of their information.

Then while flashbulbs lit up and spectators strained forward to watch, McCarthy strode from the committee table to the witness chair, took the oath, and summoned aides Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr to his side.

He said he waived any senatorial immunity he might have.

Then, when Jenkins asked him to say in his own words where the secret FBI data came from, McCarthy took the stand from which he never retreated:

"I will not under any circumstances reveal the source of any information I may get as chairman of this committee."

Army Ordered FBI Probe

Housing Scandal Names Sought

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va) demanded today that Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole make public the names of all builders and responsible officials involved in multi-million dollar federal housing scandals.

The Virginia senator asked full public disclosure not only on the large rental and apartment projects already under investigation, but also of "all irregularities you find" in other government housing programs.

"This information should be made public in fairness and justice to conscientious builders, those paying inflated rents based on profiteer loans, and taxpayers of the United States whose credit has been committed," Byrd said in a statement.

Byrd is chairman of the congressional committee on reduction of nonessential government expenditures which is conducting one of the several investigations of excess government loans and mortgage insurance on housing projects.

Eisenhower made his statement shortly after conferring with Dulles at the White House amid signs that a storm over the success or failure of Dulles' efforts at Geneva was blowing up on Capitol Hill.

Some Demos Criticize Dulles

Some Democrats have been openly critical of Dulles and were reported ready to pepper him with questions about his diplomatic maneuvers involving Korea and the Indochina war crisis.

Sen. Thomas C. Hennings (D-Mo) said in a speech at Haverford, Pa., yesterday that Dulles went to Geneva "riding the crest of a big bluff" and the United States suffered a "diplomatic defeat" there.

Dulles himself appeared in cheerful spirits as he emerged from his talk with Eisenhower. Talking with newsmen, Dulles was asked to comment on suggestions that he had suffered "a major diplomatic defeat" at Geneva.

With a chuckle, Dulles replied: "I don't understand what's happened there (at Geneva) which is alleged to constitute the defeat."

French Technicians Bound For Indochina Aboard USAF Planes

MARSEILLE, France, May 5 (AP)—Six U.S. Air Force Globemaster transport planes took off from Istres Field here today with 450 French army and air force technicians bound for Indochina.

This was the second of a series of airlifts provided by the U.S. Air Force for French reinforcements urgently needed in the critical war in Indochina. The first on April 18—called "Operation Bali High"—carried about 1,000 French paratroopers from Orly Field, Paris, to Indochina, a flight of 8,500 miles.

In Paris, a spokesman for the French government said today's flight did not indicate an emergency transport of combat troops. He said it simply marked the use of the U.S. Air Force for transport in the relief and replacement of French technicians in Indochina.

M'Carthy-Army Probe "Disgrace," HST Says

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman is quoted in Newsweek magazine today as calling the McCarthy-Army hearing the "sort of thing that should be left to Barnum & Bailey."

In labelling the hearing "disgraceful," Truman told Newsweek:

Sen. McCarthy On Witness Stand

Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) appears as a witness in the inquiry into his row with Army officials. Roy Cohn, his chief counsel, is seated beside him. McCarthy swore an Army intelligence officer gave him the hotly-disputed purported copy of an FBI letter. He refused to name the officer.

Paraguay Army Units Reported Staging Revolt

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 5 (AP)—Reports here said today army units in Paraguay staged a midnight uprising in Asuncion aimed at overthrowing the government of President Federico Chaves.

The reports, which lacked direct confirmation, said loyal government forces succeeded in quelling the uprising in the Paraguayan capital. They said Police Chief Dr. Roberto L. Petit was killed in the battle with the rebels.

A well informed source in Buenos Aires said this afternoon the situation in the Paraguayan capital was "uncertain." This indicated the movement against the Chaves government appeared still active.

General Reported Killed

Unconfirmed rumors circulating here said several Paraguayan government leaders were killed in the early-morning fighting including Gen. Alfredo Stroesner, commander in chief of the armed forces.

These and sketchy radio broadcasts from inside that central South American country indicated unrest had broken the comparative calm of nearly five years—longest period of peace in Paraguay's long, bloody history.

A broadcast from Radio Telco a private station at Asuncion, said a division of cavalry—normally about 500 mounted men in the Paraguayan army—had risen against the Chaves' regime. Loyal troops and police rallied to the government's defense, the station added.

Street Rioting Reported

A Branaiff Airways plane was ordered to bypass its scheduled stop at Asuncion and fly on from here to Lima Peru via Bolivia. Passengers who had booked seats at Asuncion were grounded.

Other reports reaching here said rioting had broken out in the streets of Asuncion — scene of many previous revolutions—and the government had declared a nationwide state of siege.

These advices said all roads leading into the capital had been blocked. Telephone communications from outside the country were cut off.

Britain To Talk United Action If Parley Fails

LONDON, May 5 (AP)—Britain has agreed to join early Allied talks to consider taking united military action in Indochina if the Geneva peace negotiations fail, American and British sources said tonight.

The American-proposed parley of air, land and sea force chiefs is expected to take place within the next three weeks in Washington.

Informants said it would have a dual purpose: to produce plans to underwrite any sort of political settlement in Indochina that might come out of Geneva talks; to save Indochina from being overrun by the Communist-led Vietminh in case the peace talks fail.

Unscheduled Stop

ROME, May 5 (AP)—A Pakistan international airliner Constellation with 60 passengers aboard made an unscheduled stop at Ciampino Airport tonight when one engine failed on its flight from Cairo to London.

Parakeet Sucked Up Cleaner Hose; Only Pride Hurt

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — Chuck's tail feathers went sailing up the vacuum cleaner hose. Chuck went with them.

Dennis Jenkins, 7, cleaning up spilled seed beneath Chuck the parakeet's cage, hollered for help.

His mother, Mrs. Florence Mulroy, his sister, Daphne, 3, and a couple of neighbors responded.

Should they reverse the vacuum motor and blow Chuck back out? No, they decided, they'd have to get expert help.

They uncoupled the hose and rushed it to an appliance store. Chuck came out, ruffled and indignant. He was in fine feather today after a night's rest.

President Says Feud Has Cost Nation Prestige

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the McCarthy-Army row has cost the United States a loss of international prestige and, to some extent, of national self respect.

He hopes, he told his news conference, that the incident will provide advantages that are at least comparable to those losses.

He took occasion also, in answering questions, to say he knows nothing that would cause him to lose confidence in Secretary of the Army Stevens' administration of the Army. On that basis, the President said, he would back Stevens to the limit.

Stevens has been testifying for 10 days before the Senate Investigations subcommittee about alleged efforts of Chairman McCarthy (R-Wis) and his staff to obtain special treatment for Army Pvt. G. David Schine, and McCarthy's countercharge that Schine was held as a "hostage" to hamper his subcommittee's investigation of the Army.

Mitchell Warns Demos Of GOP 'Smear Tactics'

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell told Democrats today to be on guard against "political indictments" at the hands of Atty. Gen. Brownell and "smear and fear" tactics by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) in the campaign for control of Congress.

Asserting that the Republicans plan to mix a "big money" drive with smear tactics, Mitchell urged members of the Democratic National Committee not to be overconfident even though he said their party holds a "genuine advantage" over the Republicans "in the basic confidence of the voters and on the major issues of the day.

Roosevelt Case Stand Backed

Before Mitchell spoke, the party's Executive Committee unanimously backed his withdrawal of support from James Roosevelt and Rep. Condon (D-Calif) in their campaigns to win party nominations for Congress in California.

Roosevelt, sued by his wife for separate maintenance, has been accused of misconduct in sensational charges. Condon waived his congressional immunity to deny charges of Communist association.

There were 86 national committee members present or represented by proxy for the rally, to be climaxed by a $100 a plate Jefferson-Jackson dinner tomorrow night.

"Overconfidence" Is "Danger"

Mitchell said things looked so good now for Democratic candidates that "Our greatest danger is over confidence."

He said the Republicans will supplement a "big money" campaign budget of $3,800,000 with "smear and fear tactics."

"We have already seen the campaign across the country entitled '20 Years of Treason,'" Mitchell declared. "We are informed that the junior senator from Wisconsin (McCarthy) is booked for three more months of speeches, but we are told that that is without the knowledge of the President."

Senate Will Limit Debate, Start T-H Voting Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — The Senate agreed today to limit debate and to start voting Friday on proposed amendments to the Taft-Hartley labor law. Republican Leader Knowland of California said he hopes to complete Senate action on the measure by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Elsewhere in Congress:

ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY—The House prepared for its first vote in 20 years on U. S. participation in the St. Lawrence Seaway, with administration forces predicting approval of the bill already passed by the Senate. The key vote will come tomorrow on a proposal to require private sale of 105 million dollars of Seaway bonds, rather than permitting their sale to the U. S. Treasury.

HOUSE MEMBERS — A Senate Judiciary subcommittee approved a proposed constitutional amendment to permit governors of states to fill vacancies in the House of Representatives in case an atomic attack or other calamity should create more than 145 empty seats.

MCCARTHY-ARMY — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) got into the witness chair in the Senate hearing over his row with Pentagon officials to tell about a secret letter. He swore he acted in good faith in first calling it a letter from the FBI to the Army, although it turned out to be quotations from an FBI report. McCarthy said he got it from an Army intelligence officer, but refused to name him.

The document warned of the danger of Russian espionage at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. McCarthy said the Army had ample warning but delayed action. Secretary of the Army Stevens said he acted promptly to have Ft. Monmouth investigated.

Czechoslovakia Protests

VIENNA, Austria, May 5 (AP) — Communist Czechoslovakia has protested "sharply" against balloon-borne anti-Communist material launched from the German-Czechoslovak border area on the eve of May 1, Radio Prague reported today.

Senator Takes Witness Stand In Row Inquiry

Refuses To Identify Man Who Gave Him Secret FBI Material

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy took the witness stand today and, in dramatic sworn testimony, refused to name an Army intelligence officer who, he said, gave him secret FBI material warning of Russian spy danger at Ft. Monmouth, N.J.

Roaring his refusal before a tense throng of spectators at a televised hearing, the Wisconsin senator told Army Counsel Joseph N. Welch:

"Neither you nor anybody else will get me to violate the confidence of loyal people. . . . You can try until doomsday."

Welch reminded McCarthy of his oath to "tell the whole truth" and implored him to do so. But McCarthy stuck to his position and was upheld by Sen. Mundt (R-SD), acting chairman of the investigating subcommittee.

Highlight Of Hearing

McCarthy's first appearance as witness provided one of the highlights of the 10-day-old airing of his row with high Pentagon officials.

It was McCarthy's day in another respect, too.

He established, through FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, that the secret material in question was a condensed version—mostly word for word—of a spy warning the FBI sent to Army intelligence Jan. 26, 1951.

The Army lawyer had challenged McCarthy's version of this material—in the form of a letter purporting to be from Hoover—as a "perfect phoney."

Hoover sent word through a subcommittee aide that he never wrote such a letter. But after a recheck the aide, Robert A. Collier, said Hoover told him the letter was taken almost verbatim from a much longer FBI memo issued on that same 1951 day.

Then arose the question of where McCarthy got the letter.

Jenkins Calls McCarthy

With a showmanlike flourish, Special Counsel Ray H. Jenkins called out the name of his next witness: "Sen. McCarthy!"

There was a gasp from the standing-room-only audience.

McCarthy glowered at Jenkins—said he'd be glad to take the stand but insisted on one thing: That all other senators in the inquiry be made to testify under oath, too, on the sources of their information.

Then while flashbulbs lit up and spectators strained forward to watch, McCarthy strode from the committee table to the witness chair, took the oath, and summoned aides Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr to his side.

He said he waived any senatorial immunity he might have.

Then, when Jenkins asked him to say in his own words where the secret FBI data came from, McCarthy took the stand from which he never retreated:

"I will not under any circumstances reveal the source of any information I may get as chairman of this committee."

Housing Scandal Names Sought

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va) demanded today that Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole make public the names of all builders and responsible officials involved in multi-million dollar federal housing scandals.

The Virginia senator asked full public disclosure not only on the large rental and apartment projects already under investigation, but also of "all irregularities you find" in other government housing programs.

"This information should be made public in fairness and justice to conscientious builders, those paying inflated rents based on profiteer loans, and taxpayers of the United States whose credit has been committed," Byrd said in a statement.

Byrd is chairman of the congressional committee on reduction of nonessential government expenditures which is conducting one of the several investigations of excess government loans and mortgage insurance on housing projects.

Primary Victories Go To Sparkman, Bender

[By The Associated Press]

Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala) and Rep. George H. Bender (R-Ohio) held clear victories today in the only contested races for senatorial nominations in Tuesday's primary elections.

Incumbent House members with one exception also emerged victorious in their races as five states — Alabama, Ohio, Florida, Indiana and New Mexico—picked candidates for four governorships, three Senate seats and 53 places in the House of Representatives.

The exception was Rep. Robert Crosser, 79, a Cleveland, Ohio, Democrat who trailed former City Judge Charles A. Vanik by about 450 votes. Except for two terms, Crosser has served continuously in the House since 1913.

Sparkman, the 1952 Democratic vice presidential nominee, successfully overcame charges by two of his three opponents that in the 1952 race he had tried to "carry water on both shoulders" on the issue of civil rights. He polled 55 per cent of the total Democratic vote to win renomination which is tantamount to election in Alabama.

Sparkman was running more than 50,000 votes ahead of his nearest opponent, Rep. Laurie C. Battle, who sought to move into the Senate after four terms in the House.

Bender, a House member for 14 years, outdistanced William Saxbe, Mechanicsburg attorney and Ohio house speaker, for the Republican nomination to the remaining two years of the term of the late Robert A. Taft.

Bender will oppose Sen. Thomas A. Burke, former Cleveland mayor who is filling Taft's place by appointment, in the November election against Gov. Edwin Mechem, who was unopposed for the Republican senatorial nomination.

In Alabama, former Gov. James E. (Kissing Jim) Folsom won a clear majority over six opponents for the Democratic nomination for governor, tantamount to election. His tally was nearly double that of his nearest opponent.

In Ohio, the candidates for governor were chosen without opposition. They are incumbent Frank J. Lausche, Democrat, and Republican James A. Rhodes, state auditor and former Columbus mayor.

Senator Takes

down from the post for purposes of these hearings.

McCarthy produced the letter in an effort to show that the Army dragged its feet in rooting out alleged subversives, although he said it had ample warning.

Stevens has repeatedly denied he was dilatory — and today he declared that the Army ordered a full FBI investigation of Ft. Monmouth in April 1953 — two months after he took office.

McCarthy said the FBI material listed 34 persons alleged to be linked to Julius Rosenberg, who was convicted of atomic espionage and electrocuted. The senator said "approximately 17" of these people were still working in the Ft. Monmouth radar laboratories when his subcommittee started an investigation there last October.

He said the document deals principally with Aaron Coleman, whom he has described as a Young Communist League member who attended meetings with Rosenberg. Coleman has denied to the subcommittee that he is a Communist. He has told newsmen that he attended a Young Communist League meeting with Rosenberg as a college student, but said the meeting made him a confirmed anti-Communist.

McCarthy said today the letter with the FBI material was handed to him a year ago by an Army officer — a young man, he said, who was "deeply disturbed" that in spite of repeated FBI warnings "nothing was being done" about Communist infiltration of places like the top-secret radar laboratory at Ft. Monmouth.

Jordan Accuses Israel

JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector, May 5 (AP)—Jordan accused Israel of three frontier violations today in complaints filed with the Jordan-Israel mixed armistice commission.

Butter Problem Stumps Benson

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today he hasn't found a suitable plan for disposing of 360 million pounds of surplus government-owned butter. He asked Congress for help.

Benson told the House Agriculture Committee that to avoid future government buying a production payment plan is "administratively feasible" but that he does not feel he has authority to use this. He said he has asked the attorney general for a ruling.

Under the plan, he said it would be possible to halt further government buying. Butter prices would be allowed to drop to whatever level that supply and demand would carry them.

The government would make up the difference between the market price and the support price in the form of payments to processors.

Benson mentioned two other proposals. One was a one-cent-a-pound sales plan. Under this the consumer would get a pound of surplus butter at a penny for every pound of commercial butter bought at the regular price. This, Benson said, would be awkward to administer because it involved coupons.

The other was a blended price plan — the government would sell its butter at low prices to distributors and allow them to sell it, along with commercial butter, at an average price of the two.

Most Wanted List's Latest Addition Nabbed

NEW ORLEANS, May 5 (INS)—Raymond L. Menard, who was just added to the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives last Monday, was captured today without a struggle by New Orleans police.

The FBI, in making the announcement, said that an alert New Orleans resident who saw the 27-year-old Menard's picture in a Crescent City newspaper last Monday, informed police.

Menard was captured with his wife Delores, both of whom are wanted in St. Louis by the FBI for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for burglary. The couple has been living in New Orleans' French quarter the past three months.

The annual erosion loss in the United States has been estimated at 400 million dollars.

Mahoney Calls For Reduction In Bridge Tolls

ELKTON, Md., May 5 (AP)—George P. Mahoney told Cecil County Young Democrats tonight that if elected governor he would recommend an immediate reduction in commuter tolls on the State's three toll bridges.

Earnings of the Chesapeake Bay, Potomac River and Susquehanna River bridges" are continuing far in excess of the amount required for maintenance, interest and sinking funds," Mahoney said.

"I contend that a reasonable reduction in toll charges for all three bridges is possible without in any way interfering with the construction of the proposed Baltimore Harbor Tunnel."

Under present state plans, tolls from the proposed tunnel would be lumped with those of the bridges and bonds for all four major water crossings would be retired at the same time.

Mahoney, candidate for Democratic nomination for governor, said he favored reducing the present 3-cent commutation tickets on the Susquehanna bridge to one cent for residents of Cecil and Harford Counties.

He said Maryland residents using the Potomac-Chesapeake Bay bridges to and from their work should also receive lower rates.

Mahoney addressed a dinner of the Cecil County Young Democrats' Club.

Meanwhile, his headquarters in Baltimore announced more backing for Mahoney on the Eastern Shore. It said Kent County's Independent Democrats had endorsed the candidacies of Mahoney, Philip H. Dorsey Jr. for attorney general, and Comptroller J. Millard Tawes.

The Kent Independents have filed a county ticket, headed by Philip G. Wilmer, Chestertown's ten-term mayor who is seeking nomination to the State Senate.

National Geographic Society Head Retires

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—The man who headed the National Geographic Society since 1920 and edited its magazine since 1899, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, retired today at 78.

It was under Grosvenor that the National Geographic magazine grew from a struggling publication to one of world note. Its circulation was so small when he took over he carried the entire edition on his back to the postoffice. Last year's output was 26 million copies.

"Bazooka" Shell Missing In Home

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (AP)—The watchword at Mrs. J. L. Laswell's house these days might well be "Take it easy."

That's because there's a bomb in the house.

Mrs. Laswell has just learned that the three funny-looking gadgets found in her basement are fully armed, explodable "bazooka" shells. The Army uses them to stop enemy tanks.

She had thought they were bombs, all right, but of the insect-killer type. A cousin, Richard Laswell, set her straight.

She said she found the bombs when she moved into the house last November.

By the time she got around to calling police, one of the shells was missing. And it's believed still to be in the basement — a place where her grandchildren often play —buried amid boxes and crates of stored items.

End To Tax Bill News Blackout Urged By George

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Veteran Sen. George (D-Ga) said today he would urge the Senate Finance Committee to end its news blackout on its daily actions on the omnibus tax revision bill.

George, senior Democrat on the committee and formerly its chairman for 10 years, told reporters "I will certainly favor" daily reports of progress on the 875-page measure.

"A tax bill is so important you can't handle it any other way," he declared.

The committee had voted yesterday to wait until it had completed action on the measure, and announce all its decisions at one time. Chairman Millikin (R-Colo) said the decision was reaffirmed today.

George returned to Washington today after a Florida visit he made to recover from effects of a virus infection. He missed the first two days of secret hearings on the revision bill, but said he would be on hand tomorrow and would press for disclosure of actions as soon as they are taken.

Millikin told reporters the committee passed over for the time being today scheduled action on a controversial provision to cut taxes on dividend income.

But he gave no further information, either on why that was done or on what other actions were taken, beyond the comment that he didn't think any other decisions made on the highly technical revision bill would make much news.

Welch, Stevens' Adviser, Full Of Contrasts

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Into the McCarthy-Army hearings today, as on every day throughout these past two weeks, there leisurely strolled a 63-year-old man who looked as if he hadn't a problem in the world.

As usual, others busily conferred. As usual, others toted impressive looking briefcases.

But this man, whose name is Joseph N. Welch, conferred with no one, carried nothing. His hands were thrust into his pants pockets. The coat of his conservative brown suit was open to disclose a conservative vest.

The only signs of sparkle from this sombre exterior were his bow tie, a gay green, and his smile as Welch jested with reporters.

No one, seeing his relaxed, amused expression, would guess he had an important role to play in this lengthy drama.

But when the hearings opened, and Secretary of the Army Stevens took the witness chair for the tenth day, Welch slid into the chair at Stevens' left. He was back on the job, giving legal advice to Army officials in their dispute with Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

As a legal adviser, he has been as full of contrasts as that dull suit and bright tie.

Much of the time, his long face peering out from beside Stevens has resembled the dormouse in "Alice in Wonderland." And, during the early part of the hearings, there was a tendency of those looking on to want to yell at Welch, as Alice did at the mad tea party:

"Wake up, dormouse, wake up!"

But Welch in action and Welch simply listening are different men. For Welch has left these two general impressions:

1. Of the 375,000 words that have gone into the record, probably fewer were said by Welch than by any other major figure.

2. What words he has said usually have had a sparkle all their own.

The sparkle comes through in almost everything he says. Such as the simple request from Chairman Mundt (R-SD), who wondered whether Welch would prefer night or Saturday sessions.

His answer: Neither. And he put it this way:

"Hearings on Saturday are equally repulsive because the chair knows my lovely habit of going back to my home (in Walpole, Mass.) My own view is, if you put in the number of hours we are putting in, you will do about as much good as if you flog your mind when you're tired, trying to prove something.

"You get into wrangles.

"My observation about night sessions is that my temper is short . . . I am just as opposed as the dickens to night sessions and equally opposed to Saturday sessions. But, as I have said before, mine is a small voice.

"If I have to do it, I will hitch up my suspenders one more notch, and I will do it—but I hope I don't have to."

His quick sallies have produced the biggest laughs of the hearings. Such as the time McCarthy asked for a definition of a pixie, and was told instantly:

"It's a close relative of a fairy."

Watermen Say Bay Is Alive With Crabs

ANNAPOLIS, May 5 (AP)—Watermen in the lower Chesapeake Bay report the water alive with crabs and the Tidewater Fisheries Commission expects "a banner year from every indication."

Commissioner John P. Tawes said some crabbers from the lower part of Maryland's end of the bay say there are more crabs this year than they have ever seen.

The reports prompted the fisheries department to move up the regular opening of the crabbing season a month from its date of May 1, and although crabs still aren't plentiful in upper bay they are reported running "a week earlier than usual."

France Building First Double Jet Transport

PARIS, May 5 (AP)—Paul Devinat, French civil aviation minister, said today his country is building the world's first two-jet transport plane.

He said the plane, called the S.E. 210 Caravelle, is 102 feet long, low-winged, and with a range of 2,060 to 2,500 miles, depending on load, at 500 miles per hour.

It is designed to carry 70 passengers and 5,500 pounds of freight he added.

Europe supports more people to the square mile than any other continent. Europe — excepting Soviet Russia — ha. an average 207 per acre.

McCarthy produced the letter in an effort to show that the Army dragged its feet in rooting out alleged subversives, although he said it had ample warning.

Stevens has repeatedly denied he was dilatory — and today he declared that the Army ordered a full FBI investigation of Ft. Monmouth in April 1953 — two months after he took office.

McCarthy said the FBI material listed 34 persons alleged to be linked to Julius Rosenberg, who was convicted of atomic espionage and electrocuted. The senator said "approximately 17" of these people were still working in the Ft. Monmouth radar laboratories when his subcommittee started an investigation there last October.

He said the document deals principally with Aaron Coleman, whom he has described as a Young Communist League member who attended meetings with Rosenberg. Coleman has denied to the subcommittee that he is a Communist. He has told newsmen that he attended a Young Communist League meeting with Rosenberg as a college student, but said the meeting made him a confirmed anti-Communist.

McCarthy said today the letter with the FBI material was handed to him a year ago by an Army officer — a young man, he said, who was "deeply disturbed" that in spite of repeated FBI warnings "nothing was being done" about Communist infiltration of places like the top-secret radar laboratory at Ft. Monmouth.

Butter Problem Stumps Benson

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today he hasn't found a suitable plan for disposing of 360 million pounds of surplus government-owned butter. He asked Congress for help.

Benson told the House Agriculture Committee that to avoid future government buying a production payment plan is "administratively feasible" but that he does not feel he has authority to use this. He said he has asked the attorney general for a ruling.

Under the plan, he said it would be possible to halt further government buying. Butter prices would be allowed to drop to whatever level that supply and demand would carry them.

The government would make up the difference between the market price and the support price in the form of payments to processors.

Benson mentioned two other proposals. One was a one-cent-a-pound sales plan. Under this the consumer would get a pound of surplus butter at a penny for every pound of commercial butter bought at the regular price. This, Benson said, would be awkward to administer because it involved coupons.

The other was a blended price plan — the government would sell its butter at low prices to distributors and allow them to sell it, along with commercial butter, at an average price of the two.

Most Wanted List's Latest Addition Nabbed

NEW ORLEANS, May 5 (INS)—Raymond L. Menard, who was just added to the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives last Monday, was captured today without a struggle by New Orleans police.

The FBI, in making the announcement, said that an alert New Orleans resident who saw the 27-year-old Menard's picture in a Crescent City newspaper last Monday, informed police.

Menard was captured with his wife Delores, both of whom are wanted in St. Louis by the FBI for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for burglary. The couple has been living in New Orleans' French quarter the past three months.

The annual erosion loss in the United States has been estimated at 400 million dollars.

Jordan Accuses Israel

JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector, May 5 (AP)—Jordan accused Israel of three frontier violations today in complaints filed with the Jordan-Israel mixed armistice commission.

Mahoney Calls For Reduction In Bridge Tolls

ELKTON, Md., May 5 (AP)—George P. Mahoney told Cecil County Young Democrats tonight that if elected governor he would recommend an immediate reduction in commuter tolls on the State's three toll bridges.

Earnings of the Chesapeake Bay, Potomac River and Susquehanna River bridges" are continuing far in excess of the amount required for maintenance, interest and sinking funds," Mahoney said.

"I contend that a reasonable reduction in toll charges for all three bridges is possible without in any way interfering with the construction of the proposed Baltimore Harbor Tunnel."

Under present state plans, tolls from the proposed tunnel would be lumped with those of the bridges and bonds for all four major water crossings would be retired at the same time.

Mahoney, candidate for Democratic nomination for governor, said he favored reducing the present 3-cent commutation tickets on the Susquehanna bridge to one cent for residents of Cecil and Harford Counties.

He said Maryland residents using the Potomac-Chesapeake Bay bridges to and from their work should also receive lower rates.

Mahoney addressed a dinner of the Cecil County Young Democrats' Club.

Meanwhile, his headquarters in Baltimore announced more backing for Mahoney on the Eastern Shore. It said Kent County's Independent Democrats had endorsed the candidacies of Mahoney, Philip H. Dorsey Jr. for attorney general, and Comptroller J. Millard Tawes.

The Kent Independents have filed a county ticket, headed by Philip G. Wilmer, Chestertown's ten-term mayor who is seeking nomination to the State Senate.

National Geographic Society Head Retires

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—The man who headed the National Geographic Society since 1920 and edited its magazine since 1899, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, retired today at 78.

It was under Grosvenor that the National Geographic magazine grew from a struggling publication to one of world note. Its circulation was so small when he took over he carried the entire edition on his back to the postoffice. Last year's output was 26 million copies.

"Bazooka" Shell Missing In Home

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (AP)—The watchword at Mrs. J. L. Laswell's house these days might well be "Take it easy."

That's because there's a bomb in the house.

Mrs. Laswell has just learned that the three funny-looking gadgets found in her basement are fully armed, explodable "bazooka" shells. The Army uses them to stop enemy tanks.

She had thought they were bombs, all right, but of the insect-killer type. A cousin, Richard Laswell, set her straight.

She said she found the bombs when she moved into the house last November.

By the time she got around to calling police, one of the shells was missing. And it's believed still to be in the basement — a place where her grandchildren often play —buried amid boxes and crates of stored items.

End To Tax Bill News Blackout Urged By George

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Veteran Sen. George (D-Ga) said today he would urge the Senate Finance Committee to end its news blackout on its daily actions on the omnibus tax revision bill.

George, senior Democrat on the committee and formerly its chairman for 10 years, told reporters "I will certainly favor" daily reports of progress on the 875-page measure.

"A tax bill is so important you can't handle it any other way," he declared.

The committee had voted yesterday to wait until it had completed action on the measure, and announce all its decisions at one time. Chairman Millikin (R-Colo) said the decision was reaffirmed today.

George returned to Washington today after a Florida visit he made to recover from effects of a virus infection. He missed the first two days of secret hearings on the revision bill, but said he would be on hand tomorrow and would press for disclosure of actions as soon as they are taken.

Millikin told reporters the committee passed over for the time being today scheduled action on a controversial provision to cut taxes on dividend income.

But he gave no further information, either on why that was done or on what other actions were taken, beyond the comment that he didn't think any other decisions made on the highly technical revision bill would make much news.

Watermen Say Bay Is Alive With Crabs

ANNAPOLIS, May 5 (AP)—Watermen in the lower Chesapeake Bay report the water alive with crabs and the Tidewater Fisheries Commission expects "a banner year from every indication."

Commissioner John P. Tawes said some crabbers from the lower part of Maryland's end of the bay say there are more crabs this year than they have ever seen.

The reports prompted the fisheries department to move up the regular opening of the crabbing season a month from its date of May 1, and although crabs still aren't plentiful in upper bay they are reported running "a week earlier than usual."

Welch, Stevens' Adviser, Full Of Contrasts

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Into the McCarthy-Army hearings today, as on every day throughout these past two weeks, there leisurely strolled a 63-year-old man who looked as if he hadn't a problem in the world.

As usual, others busily conferred. As usual, others toted impressive looking briefcases.

But this man, whose name is Joseph N. Welch, conferred with no one, carried nothing. His hands were thrust into his pants pockets. The coat of his conservative brown suit was open to disclose a conservative vest.

The only signs of sparkle from this sombre exterior were his bow tie, a gay green, and his smile as Welch jested with reporters.

No one, seeing his relaxed, amused expression, would guess he had an important role to play in this lengthy drama.

But when the hearings opened, and Secretary of the Army Stevens took the witness chair for the tenth day, Welch slid into the chair at Stevens' left. He was back on the job, giving legal advice to Army officials in their dispute with Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

As a legal adviser, he has been as full of contrasts as that dull suit and bright tie.

Much of the time, his long face peering out from beside Stevens has resembled the dormouse in "Alice in Wonderland." And, during the early part of the hearings, there was a tendency of those looking on to want to yell at Welch, as Alice did at the mad tea party:

"Wake up, dormouse, wake up!"

But Welch in action and Welch simply listening are different men. For Welch has left these two general impressions:

1. Of the 375,000 words that have gone into the record, probably fewer were said by Welch than by any other major figure.

2. What words he has said usually have had a sparkle all their own.

The sparkle comes through in almost everything he says. Such as the simple request from Chairman Mundt (R-SD), who wondered whether Welch would prefer night or Saturday sessions.

His answer: Neither. And he put it this way:

"Hearings on Saturday are equally repulsive because the chair knows my lovely habit of going back to my home (in Walpole, Mass.) My own view is, if you put in the number of hours we are putting in, you will do about as much good as if you flog your mind when you're tired, trying to prove something.

"You get into wrangles.

"My observation about night sessions is that my temper is short . . . I am just as opposed as the dickens to night sessions and equally opposed to Saturday sessions. But, as I have said before, mine is a small voice.

"If I have to do it, I will hitch up my suspenders one more notch, and I will do it—but I hope I don't have to."

His quick sallies have produced the biggest laughs of the hearings. Such as the time McCarthy asked for a definition of a pixie, and was told instantly:

"It's a close relative of a fairy."

France Building First Double Jet Transport

PARIS, May 5 (AP)—Paul Devinat, French civil aviation minister, said today his country is building the world's first two-jet transport plane.

He said the plane, called the S.E. 210 Caravelle, is 102 feet long, low-winged, and with a range of 2,060 to 2,500 miles, depending on load, at 500 miles per hour.

It is designed to carry 70 passengers and 5,500 pounds of freight he added.

Europe supports more people to the square mile than any other continent. Europe — excepting Soviet Russia — ha an average 207 per acre.

Md. Health Dept. Warns Builders, Buyers Of Homes

BALTIMORE, May 5 (AP) — The State Health Department issued a warning today to buyers and builders of new homes, saying they can save themselves a lot of headaches by checking first on arrangements for water supply and sewage disposal.

"Inadequate private water and sewage installations are being made almost every day," said Robert M. Brown, chief of the department's bureau of enviromental hygiene.

"There are many homes in Maryland counties where sewage is flowing from private disposal units directly onto the ground or into nearby rivers and streams.

"It is suggested that those contemplating buying a lot contact the local health department to make certain both water and sewerage facilities can be provided on that particular lot."

Brown pointed out the law requires the developers of subdivisions to submit their plans for water supply and sewage disposal before they start selling lots or building houses, but he warned this is no assurance that every lot in the development is a suitable building site.

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, chief Russian delegate to the U.N., sailed for home today on the liner Queen Elizabeth.

He gave a short statement to newsmen, saying:

"After my return to New York from my vacation I shall continue my work for the good of peace. Let me wish the American people have all the success in that great and honorable cause for the good of mankind."

Father Convicted Of Aquatot's Death Now In Guatemala

GUATEMALA, May 5 (AP)—Russell Tongay, husky Miami, Fla., swimming instructor who was convicted of manslaughter last January in the death of his "aquatot" daughter, Kathy, said today he is in Guatemala for a vacation.

Tongay has been in Guatemala for some time. He has been training his 8-year-old son, Bubba, in the Olympic pool here.

Tongay was sentenced Jan. 25 to 10 years hard labor after a jury convicted him of manslaughter. He was released, however, under $5,000 bail, pending an appeal. The jury upheld the prosecution's contention that Tongay sent 5-year-old Kathy to her death by forcing her to dive from dangerous heights. The child died after diving from a 33-foot tower at a Miami beach pool.

Stevens' Day Far From Gruelling

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Secretary of the Army Stevens went into his 10th day as a witness in the Army-McCarthy hearings, but the start of his cross-examination today could hardly be called gruelling.

For here are his complete answers to the two questions put to him:

"Yes, sir."

"No, sir."

These were his replies as to whether he had looked for, and found, a letter requested yesterday.

After he said he had not been able to find it, he was excused, temporarily, for other testimony.

Stevens had been in the witness chair for around 20 minutes. Total time spent answering questions—one minute.

So it can be seen how matters are speeding along with this hearing. Particularly since Sen. McCarthy today decided to make a guess on how long it will take merely to finish asking Stevens questions.

McCarthy's estimate: "Many, many weeks."

Psychiatrist Says Physical Disease Is Factor In Delinquency And Crime

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

ST. LOUIS, May 5 (AP) — Hidden physical ailments often are part of the disease of juvenile delinquency and crime, a psychiatrist-expert said yesterday.

Finding the physical disease and correcting it helps "cure" the delinquents and criminals, said Dr. Ralph S. Banay of New York City, former chief psychiatrist at Sing Sing.

"Criminality is a disease, an emotional disorganization, and it often has a physical cause," he told the American Psychiatric Assn.

The physical troubles can be unrecognized nervous disorders, damage from encephalitis or brain fever, latent epilepsy, disturbed glands, complications from such childhood diseases as measles, or incipient schizophrenia, he said.

They can make a person more susceptible to psychological or emotional injury or breakdown, he explained.

Bringing the serious delinquent or criminal back to normal life calls for total treatment of a person with the aid of all community resources, Dr. Banay said.

Punishment alone cannot prevent crime, he declared, and psychotherapy alone is no "magic wand" to prevent crime.

Reporting a five-year study of 50 serious delinquents and criminals who were given total treatment including careful search for physical ailments and their correction, Dr. Banay said 30 have remained law-abiding four to five years since their treatment was stopped. Without such treatment, some 60 per cent probably would have committed new crimes, he said.

Dr. Banay urged establishment of more complete diagnostic - and - treatment centers for law breakers and long - term, individualized treatment to discover physical ailments as well as give psychiatric and other treatments.

He said he believes juvenile crimes are becoming more violent, perhaps because we are living in violent, fearful, insecure times with threats of war and atomic bombings.

This seems to be "mobilizing more aggression in the young than can be dissipated through sports or other activities."

Dr. Banay now is medical director of the Civic Center Clinic in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Wet Weather Holds Up Farm Field Work

COLLEGE PARK, Md., May 5 (AP)—Crop reporters in Maryland and Delaware said today recent heavy rains have held up field work on some farms but the moisture has been fine for pastures and some other crops.

The weekly report issued by U. S. Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau and Farm Extension Service at the University of Maryland covers the period ended last Saturday, so it does not take into account the current cold snap and the heavy rain storms which ushered it in Monday.

Before the weekend the report indicated the only areas of Maryland needing more ground moisture were Washington County.

"Although insect activity has been fairly heavy and control has been a problem, most hay crops show an abundant growth," the report said. "After getting off to a slow start, pastures have fully recovered and now show good growth."

Some of the observations on other crops:

FIELD CROPS

Many corn fields have had to be prepared the second time because of the rains. Rye and barley are heading or commencing to head in all areas. So are wheat and winter oats, except in northern areas. Sweet potatoe beds show excellent growth.

Tobacco beds in Southern Maryland appear to be in good shape. Disease has not been a problem, although some blue mold has been noted. Pea aphids have infested alfalfa and clover fields quite generally. Spittle bug and alfalfa weevil control has been a problem.

TRUCK CROPS

Asparagus cutting continues in heavy volume, with quality excellent. Snap beans and limas are up well. Most other crops are in the planting stage, with some of the earliest plantings up. Peas are starting to bloom. The concentration right now is setting out tomato plants.

FRUIT

Peach and apple trees are setting their fruit. Strawberries are sizing and picking should start about May 10.

Safety Patrols Of State Schools To March In D. C.

BALTIMORE, May 5 (AP)—About 8,300 Maryland boys and girls will march in Washington Saturday, one of the largest contingents in the annual School Safety Patrol parade sponsored by the American Automobile Assn.

The parade starts at 9 a.m. and Maryland units are expected to start by the reviewing stand on Constitution Avenue about 11:20 a. m.

More than 30,000 youngsters from 20 states are scheduled to participate.

The Marylanders will be paced by 34 bands and 11 drum and bugle corps from their home state, a record number.

The Maryland delegation will include the safety patrols of more than 170 schools in the state, plus representatives of each patrol in Baltimore City and Montgomery and Prince Georges counties.

Maryland state troopers and county and city policemen will march with them after escorting the units to Washington.

Baltimore county will have the largest single delegation, with more than 1,600 boys and girls in the white Sam Browne belts they wear while guiding their classmates across busy streets near their schools.

With them will be a platoon of auxiliary county police women who recently took over the job of guarding the most dangerous intersections.

In a prelude to the parade, President Eisenhower will present gold lifesaver medals and certificates to nine of the safety patrol members at 12:45 p. m. Friday and one of these will be Nancy Cissell, a 12-year-old pupil at Montgomery Hills Junior High school in Silver Spring.

In the parade, 30 national awards and seven state trophies will be at stake, for the best band, the best drum and bugle corps, the best safety slogan, the best float, and other points.

Schools in Baltimore are sending about 1,500 paraders. The Annapolis branch of the Automobile Club of Maryland is sending 924 from schools in its area, the Bel Air branch 1,051, Hagerstown 871, Salisbury 548, Westminster 246, Frederick 559, and Easton 364. Prince Georges and Montgomery county representatives will total about 350 and 200, respectively.

SRC To Ask Bids On Expressway

BALTIMORE, May 5 (AP)—The State Roads Commission announced today it will ask for bids this month on two sections of the new Eastern Shore expressway totaling about 13 and a half miles.

One 4.48-mile stretch in Queen Annes County runs from U. S. 213 northeast to Maryland 305 near Carville. The other 9.3 section goes from Maryland 313 near Massey, Kent County, to Warwick, Cecil County.

They will be part of the 33 miles to be completed from U. S. 213 just below Centreville near the Chesapeake Bay bridge to Warwick.

Bids on a number of other projects also are to be received May 25 and 27.

One is for overhauling U. S. 40 where it crosses Little Savage Mountain in Garrett County.

Nearly a mile of U. S. 40 is to be relocated about five miles east of Piney Grove and extending eastward just past Maryland 546.

Woman Revived After She "Died" On Operating Table

ANNAPOLIS, May 5 (AP)—A 41-year-old woman was brought back to life today after she suddenly "died" on the operating table at Anne Arundel General Hospital.

Mrs. Bessie E. Harkins of Belvedere Beach stopped breathing and her heart stopped beating during a hernia operation at 10:03 a.m.

Dr. Elmer G. Linhardt, assisted by house physician, Dr. Frank E. Champo, immedfately opened the woman's chest and began massaging her heart.

Within eight minutes the patient breathed again and her heart resumed a normal beat. Oxygen was administered for a time afterward.

Sherill Adams, hospital administrator, said there had been no apparent "provocation" in the woman's condition for the sudden, temporary death.

Linhardt said the "excellent cooperation of the operating room crew" made the revival possible.

A tray of instruments has been kept in the operating room for some time for just such an emergency. This was the first time it had been used.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Who says there isn't dangerous inflation afoot in the capital? Here's an excerpt from Monday's luncheon menu at the caucus dining room of the Congressional Hotel, hard by Capitol Dome:

Scrambled eggs country style with bacon—$1.00.

Stuffed Swedish cabbage, tomato sauce—$1.25.

Home grown roast duck (of your old choice)—$10.000.

Broiled salmon steak—$1.65.

McCarthy vs. Army is a rhubarb wherein the hardest words in the English language to wring from a witness or prosecutor are "yes" and "no."

Take the question of whether Dave Schine, the Army's most public private, absorbed large quantities of filet mignon and champagne at Sherman Billingsley's Stork Club at a time when he should have been de-nuding spuds for Uncle Sam at Dix. Sen. McCarthy wanted to know if Secretary Stevens had ever heard about that dastardly report.

"You can answer yes or no," instructed Special Counsel Ray Jenkins, who has a Jekyll-Hyde role in this business—being both defense attorney and prosecuting attorney for the committee.

"But I didn't testify to that effect," Stevens protested.

"You can answer it yes or no," Jenkins insisted.

"Then I would like to have the recorder read it back," Stevens said, leaning back in his chair.

"Let me re-state it for you," McCarthy cut in.

Stevens wanted none of that, and Sen. Mundt said, wearily, "the reporter will read it and perhaps we can get a yes or no answer."

It was read back, and then Jenkins said, "did you have any knowledge that such was the fact? You can answer yes or no."

"This yes or no business is very difficult, Mr. Jenkins," Stevens protested.

"Surely seems to be," grumbled Jenkins, who wants to get back to Knoxville, Tenn., by next November, to run for the Senate. "I'm not arguing with you, Mr. Secretary, please understand that. We are trying to get along and bring this thing to a conclusion sometime.

"Do you know whether or not anybody ever told you, any person, any newspaper account, whether or not you had any knowledge that Private Schine was enjoying filet mignon when he should have been peeling potatoes?" Jenkins asked the witness—while the guns of Dien Bien Phu rumbled over the horizon and the H-bomb arsenals swelled.

In the end, Stevens said he had no personal knowledge of Schine's plushy life, and no one had informed him of the Stork Club phase of it specifically. But that didn't end it. McCarthy wanted to hear Stevens say either of those two little words. This bickering led to another request that the original question be read back. And while the stenotypists was trying to find it, Sen. Mundt sighed:

"The chair again suggests that those who ask the questions ask them so they can be answered yes or no; that those who answer them say yes or no; and that those who ask them listen to the answer."

Such is life along the Potomac today.

As the hearings drag on, Pan American Airways' new advertisements, announcing easy time payments on trips to exotic lands, become more enticing. After a 2-hour double-talk debate on a McCarthy press release (prepared, bewilderingly enough, by the Army) and which McCarthy never released, I put a sawbuck down on a 1-way ticket to Juneau.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Who says there isn't dangerous inflation afoot in the capital? Here's an excerpt from Monday's luncheon menu at the caucus dining room of the Congressional Hotel, hard by Capitol Dome:

Scrambled eggs country style with bacon—$1.00.

Stuffed Swedish cabbage, tomato sauce—$1.25.

Home grown roast duck (of your old choice)—$10.000.

Broiled salmon steak—$1.65.

McCarthy vs. Army is a rhubarb wherein the hardest words in the English language to wring from a witness or prosecutor are "yes" and "no."

Take the question of whether Dave Schine, the Army's most public private, absorbed large quantities of filet mignon and champagne at Sherman Billingsley's Stork Club at a time when he should have been de-nuding spuds for Uncle Sam at Dix. Sen. McCarthy wanted to know if Secretary Stevens had ever heard about that dastardly report.

"You can answer yes or no," instructed Special Counsel Ray Jenkins, who has a Jekyll-Hyde role in this business—being both defense attorney and prosecuting attorney for the committee.

"But I didn't testify to that effect," Stevens protested.

"You can answer it yes or no," Jenkins insisted.

"Then I would like to have the recorder read it back," Stevens said, leaning back in his chair.

"Let me re-state it for you," McCarthy cut in.

Stevens wanted none of that, and Sen. Mundt said, wearily, "the reporter will read it and perhaps we can get a yes or no answer."

It was read back, and then Jenkins said, "did you have any knowledge that such was the fact? You can answer yes or no."

"This yes or no business is very difficult, Mr. Jenkins," Stevens protested.

"Surely seems to be," grumbled Jenkins, who wants to get back to Knoxville, Tenn., by next November, to run for the Senate. "I'm not arguing with you, Mr. Secretary, please understand that. We are trying to get along and bring this thing to a conclusion sometime.

"Do you know whether or not anybody ever told you, any person, any newspaper account, whether or not you had any knowledge that Private Schine was enjoying filet mignon when he should have been peeling potatoes?" Jenkins asked the witness—while the guns of Dien Bien Phu rumbled over the horizon and the H-bomb arsenals swelled.

In the end, Stevens said he had no personal knowledge of Schine's plushy life, and no one had informed him of the Stork Club phase of it specifically. But that didn't end it. McCarthy wanted to hear Stevens say either of those two little words. This bickering led to another request that the original question be read back. And while the stenotypists was trying to find it, Sen. Mundt sighed:

"The chair again suggests that those who ask the questions ask them so they can be answered yes or no; that those who answer them say yes or no; and that those who ask them listen to the answer."

Such is life along the Potomac today.

As the hearings drag on, Pan American Airways' new advertisements, announcing easy time payments on trips to exotic lands, become more enticing. After a 2-hour double-talk debate on a McCarthy press release (prepared, bewilderingly enough, by the Army) and which McCarthy never released, I put a sawbuck down on a 1-way ticket to Juneau.

The Women's Republican Club of Cumberland held its annual May dinner Tuesday evening, concluding monthly meetings until September 2.

Miss Katherine Close extended an invitation to the club to attend the Frostburg club's dinner May 18 at Ali Ghan Country Club, at which time Miss Bertha Adkins, national committeewoman of Maryland and chairman of the national committee, will be guest speaker.

An invitation was extended by Mrs. Jacob Vorus, Hagerstown, for the club to attend a style show by Martin's Dress Shop, sponsored by the Fifth Ward Republican Club of Hagerstown. It is being held at 8:15 May 12 in the American Legion Home, North Avenue.

Held at Ali Ghan Country Club, the meeting was opened with the singing of "Maryland My Maryland," after which Mrs. Charles Wiebel welcomed the group. Mrs. James Orr gave the invocation and introduced Mrs. Lucile Roeder as toastmaster. Mrs. Mabel Kemp Durst sang, "The Swallows," by F. H. Cowen; and "Nocturne," by Pearl Curran.

Mrs. Roeder introduced the guests, Mrs. J. Glenn Beall, wife of Senator Beall; Mrs. DeWitt Hyde, wife of Representative Hyde; Mrs. Noel Speir Cook, state treasurer; Mrs. Elaine Palmer, president of the Young Republican Club of Allegany County; Miss Close, president of the Frostburg club; and Mrs. Emma Isizzett, president of the Mt. Savage club; and Mrs. Vorus, Mrs. John Dunn and Mrs. Robert Porter, members of the Hagerstown club.

John J. Rhodes, Congressman from Arizona, was the guest speaker. He talked on the progress the party has made since being in office, the domestic situation, Indo-China, Housing bill, and unemployment. He stressed the fact that it takes teamwork to help business to expand so jobs are available for everyone. He termed the death of Senator Taft a blow to the Republican party, but said Vice President Nixon has done a remarkable job and Republicans should be proud of him. The speaker pointed out that it is a wonderful thing for the young people to grow up in an age when a man like President Eisenhower is in the White House. In closing he urged the re-election of DeWitt Hyde.

On behalf of the club, Mrs. William Strickler presented a gift to Mrs. Wiebel, in appreciation of her work during the past year. An orchid corsage was given to Mrs. Wiebel and Mrs. Paul Fletcher.

The spring motif was carried out in the decorations of the table, with arrangements of snapdragons and tulips and candelabra of lighted tapers. The GOP elephant adorned the programs and place cards. Covers were laid for 110. Mrs. Karl Bachman and Mrs. J. Albert Nichols were co-chairmen for the dinner; Mrs. Earl Conn, Mrs. Edgar Davis and Mrs. Lester Reed, Decorations.

GOP Chairman's Statement Music To Democrats' Ears

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — The Democrats expressed pleasure last night at GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall's claim that the Republicans are following in the footsteps of Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, two Democratic Presidents.

"I am looking forward to the day when the liberalism of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt also will be mellowed enough by time to become acceptable to the Republican party," Clayton Fritchey, deputy chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said in a letter to Hall.

The Democratic party traces its roots and principles back to the 19th Century Presidents, Jefferson and Jackson. Lincoln is a revered figure of GOP history and Roosevelt was a liberal Republican.

Hall wrote Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell earlier yesterday that he noted the Democrats were preparing for their annual Jefferson - Jackson Day celebration and added:

"We feel regretfully that the Democratic party during the past 20-odd years has somehow lost sight of certain basic Jeffersonian and Jacksonian tenents. . .

"The Republican party is proud to follow in their footsteps, particularly with respect to economy, lower taxes, decentralization and greater individual freedom."

In obvious reference to the current controversy between Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and Army officials, Fritchey wrote:

"It is my hope that you will continue to explore the garden of Jefferson's prose, for he made many observations that are of topical interest, such as his letter to Nathaniel Macon in 1801 in which Jefferson observed that 'The Army is undergoing a chaste reformation'."

ICC To Air NYC Protest May 14

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission announced today it called a hearing May 14 on the New York Central Railroad company's protests against the move by Robert R. Young and associates to gain control of Central.

The ICC directed the principals in the fight to present their arguments before the full 11-man commission at that time.

The control issue will come to a showdown when Central's stockholders hold their annual meeting at Albany, N. Y., on May 26.

The ICC last month rejected New York Central's request for a general investigation into preliminary moves by Young and associates in which 800,000 shares of Central stock held by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad were taken out of trusteeship and sold to friends of Young, who will be able to vote them at the stockholders' meeting.

The commission said in effect that a preliminary inquiry indicated no irregularities. However, Central then filed additional petitions for ICC intervention, and it is on these that ICC will hear arguments May 14.

Pakistan Will Build U. S. New Embassy

KARACHI, Pakistan, May 5 (AP)— Pakistan has offered to build a new U. S. Embassy building in Karachi.

Construction will start before the end of the year and is expected to take two to three years to complete.

A Pakistan government announcement said the offer is in appreciation of a U.S. gift of wheat last year.

The bagpipe was in use among the Hebrews and the Greeks.

Wis. Forecaster Says More Snow Coming

BRODHEAD, Wis., May 5 (AP)— Neighbors of F. M. Ties, a retired fire chief, are convinced he knows his stuff about predicting snowfalls. And he says, spring or no spring, there's still more snow coming.

Early last fall he said there would be 44 snowfalls in Brodhead this winter. He calls a snowfall enough to track a rabbit.

The calendar notwithstanding, this community's 43rd snowfall fell Monday. Moreover, Ties, who uses an old Indian trick he learned as a youth to make his predictions, says there'll be one more before old man winter calls it quits.

In 20 years of forecasting, he has missed the number of snow falls by as many as four in only one year. Most years, his friends say, he hits it right on the head.

Second National Bank Plans Construction Program Here

The Second National Bank announced yesterday it has awarded a contract for improvement construction work to the George F. Hazelwood Company of this city.

Work is expected to get under way in about 30 days on a project which will double floor space of the bank and equip it with the most modern safeguards and devices, a move made necessary by the steady growth in the bank's business, officials stated.

Basically, the plan calls for entirely new construction in the form of an "L" around the present building which will be remodeled and integrated with the newly-constructed portion of the work.

Much Larger Vault

Outstanding among new features will be a much larger vault which will contain all modern improvements and safeguards, both for the bank's property and that of safe deposit box renters.

Major changes will occur in the present bank building that was constructed about 1891 from plans drawn by Bruce Price, father of the famed author on etiquette, Emily Post. The present building, second one erected on the site by the Second National Bank, today represents one of the finest examples in this country of early Flemish Renaissance architecture. So deeply has this motif become a part of Second National tradition that it was decided to employ the services of outstanding architects to plan the work.

The firm of Hoffman and Crumpton of Pittsburgh was selected.

This partnership of two men has for many years been engaged, not only in bank design, but in the formulation of plans for many types of buildings. Representative of their work in Pittsburgh are the Mellon Institute, Westinghouse Educational Center, the Oakland office of the Peoples First National Bank, the new Smithfield Street office of The Dollar Savings and Trust Company, Sheraton Hotel building, new Kaufmann Department Store and the William Penn Hotel addition.

These architects pointed out the historic value of the present bank's architecture, and it was decided to retain it in the new quarters.

One Big Facade Change

Accordingly there will be only one important change in the facade which will be extended from the eastern line of the present building across the front of the new section, occupied by Bopp's Flower Shop.

The main entrance will remain in the same location but will be modernized with an entrance at grade or sidewalk level. The entire building will be air conditioned.

The Installment Loan Department's quarters will be enlarged with the entrance through a newly-constructed doorway on South Liberty Street. Construction will extend to the bank's southerly line.

By virtue of the strength of the present building and the planned addition, it will be possible to do away with use of obstructive pillars and columns in the main banking rooms. The bank vault, as it exists, will be demolished.

Some idea of the planned enlarged facilities may be obtained from the fact that instead of seven tellers' windows in the commercial department the new quarters will have 17. The new vault will be flanked by adequate and roomy conference rooms and coupon booths for customer convenience.

Tentatively, estimated time for completing the work is 300 days, officials said. It is planned to occupy the new quarters sometimes in the early spring of next year.

Work Attending Two Safety Conferences

Magnus W. Work, 1205 Holland Street, is attending the President's Conference on Occupational Safety in Washington.

Today Work will also attend the Governor's Safety-Health Conference and Exhibit at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore.

Armed Forces Day Event Set At Fairgo

An Armed Forces Day program designed to give a "fine picture of reserve units in this area", has been arranged, according to Thomas F. Conlon, civilian chairman, and Maj. Grant E. Hoover, project officer.

The observance will be held May 15. There will be no parade but the various armed forces reserve units will participate in demonstrations at the fairgrounds in the afternoon.

Speaker will be Brig. Gen. Hugh P. Harris, chief of staff, Headquarters, Second Army.

The program actually will get under way at 11:15 a. m. when an honor guard assembles at the Post Office Building to be reviewed by Gen. Harris and to escort the official party to the Fort Cumberland Hotel for a luncheon for invited guests. The honor guard will consist of four members from each of the Reserve units—National Guard, Army, Navy and Marine—with a color guard to be made up of one man from each of the reserve units.

The program at the fairgrounds will get underway at 1:55 p. m. with the invocation by Rev. H. M. Richardson, pastor of Emmanuel Episcopal Church.

Following will be demonstrations by the Army Reserve of EOD squads and pole line construction; Marine Reserve of reinforced rifle squads in attack and with flame throwers; the Naval Reserve; and National Guard.

Gen. Harris will speak at 3 p. m.

The benediction will be by Rev. Marius Elsener, OFM Cap., pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church.

Second National Bank Plans Construction Program Here

The Second National Bank announced yesterday it has awarded a contract for improvement construction work to the George F. Hazelwood Company of this city.

Work is expected to get under way in about 30 days on a project which will double floor space of the bank and equip it with the most modern safeguards and devices, a move made necessary by the steady growth in the bank's business, officials stated.

Basically, the plan calls for entirely new construction in the form of an "L" around the present building which will be remodeled and integrated with the newly-constructed portion of the work.

Much Larger Vault

Outstanding among new features will be a much larger vault which will contain all modern improvements and safeguards, both for the bank's property and that of safe deposit box renters.

Major changes will occur in the present bank building that was constructed about 1891 from plans drawn by Bruce Price, father of the famed author on etiquette, Emily Post. The present building, second one erected on the site by the Second National Bank, today represents one of the finest examples in this country of early Flemish Renaissance architecture. So deeply has this motif become a part of Second National tradition that it was decided to employ the services of outstanding architects to plan the work.

The firm of Hoffman and Crumpton of Pittsburgh was selected.

This partnership of two men has for many years been engaged, not only in bank design, but in the formulation of plans for many types of buildings. Representative of their work in Pittsburgh are the Mellon Institute, Westinghouse Educational Center, the Oakland office of the Peoples First National Bank, the new Smithfield Street office of The Dollar Savings and Trust Company, Sheraton Hotel building, new Kaufmann Department Store and the William Penn Hotel addition.

These architects pointed out the historic value of the present bank's architecture, and it was decided to retain it in the new quarters.

One Big Facade Change

Accordingly there will be only one important change in the facade which will be extended from the eastern line of the present building across the front of the new section, occupied by Bopp's Flower Shop.

The main entrance will remain in the same location but will be modernized with an entrance at grade or sidewalk level. The entire building will be air conditioned.

The Installment Loan Department's quarters will be enlarged with the entrance through a newly-constructed doorway on South Liberty Street. Construction will extend to the bank's southerly line.

By virtue of the strength of the present building and the planned addition, it will be possible to do away with use of obstructive pillars and columns in the main banking rooms. The bank vault, as it exists, will be demolished.

Some idea of the planned enlarged facilities may be obtained from the fact that instead of seven tellers' windows in the commercial department the new quarters will have 17. The new vault will be flanked by adequate and roomy conference rooms and coupon booths for customer convenience.

Tentatively, estimated time for completing the work is 300 days, officials said. It is planned to occupy the new quarters sometimes in the early spring of next year.

Work Attending Two Safety Conferences

Magnus W. Work, 1205 Holland Street, is attending the President's Conference on Occupational Safety in Washington.

Today Work will also attend the Governor's Safety-Health Conference and Exhibit at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore.

Armed Forces Day Event Set At Fairgo

An Armed Forces Day program designed to give a "fine picture of reserve units in this area", has been arranged, according to Thomas F. Conlon, civilian chairman, and Maj. Grant E. Hoover, project officer.

The observance will be held May 15. There will be no parade but the various armed forces reserve units will participate in demonstrations at the fairgrounds in the afternoon.

Speaker will be Brig. Gen. Hugh P. Harris, chief of staff, Headquarters, Second Army.

The program actually will get under way at 11:15 a. m. when an honor guard assembles at the Post Office Building to be reviewed by Gen. Harris and to escort the official party to the Fort Cumberland Hotel for a luncheon for invited guests. The honor guard will consist of four members from each of the Reserve units—National Guard, Army, Navy and Marine—with a color guard to be made up of one man from each of the reserve units.

The program at the fairgrounds will get underway at 1:55 p. m. with the invocation by Rev. H. M. Richardson, pastor of Emmanuel Episcopal Church.

Following will be demonstrations by the Army Reserve of EOD squads and pole line construction; Marine Reserve of reinforced rifle squads in attack and with flame throwers; the Naval Reserve; and National Guard.

Gen. Harris will speak at 3 p. m. The benediction will be by Rev. Marius Elsener, OFM Cap., pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church.

Suit Over Land Tract Filed In Local Court

A suit over a half interest in a tract of land in eastern Allegany County used formerly by a sportsman's club was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by a Frederick woman and her son and daughter-in-law.

Mrs. Ethel G. Porter, Frederick, and Burgess C. and Lucille E. Porter, of Washington, D. C., filed the suit against William E. and Dorothy Trail, Lisbon, Howard County, Md.

David Kauffman, this city, and Thomas S. Glass, Frederick, are counsel for the plaintiffs.

They state in the declaration that the Long Pond Rod and Gun Club was organized by 13 members August 14, 1929 as a no-stock, non-profit organization.

Land Purchased

The club purchased two tracts of land in District 1 consisting of the Slider farm of 309 acres and the White Oak Plains Tract consisting of 101 acres.

Through death and disqualification by non-payment of shares, the club was reduced in membership until the time of forfeiture of charter on October 27, 1944, there were only two left, Charles L. Porter of Brunswick, husband of the plaintiff, and Trail.

The suit declares that both men continued to own and maintain the real estate until Porter died on July 10, 1951.

The declaration contends that the undivided half interest in this property belongs to Mrs. Porter and her son and her son's wife, and that they are heirs at law.

The plaintiffs state they are desirous of disposing of the real estate as it is not possible to divide it without doing great damage to all parties concerned.

Charge Lumber Moved

Since the death of Porter, Trail has managed and operated the real estate as though it were his own, the suit declares.

They charge that Trail sold lumber and pulp wood and removed lumber from the property to real estate he owns in Howard County, and added that he has failed to give any accounting of his stewardship.

The plaintiffs ask the court to appoint a trustee to sell the property and distribute the proceeds.

They also ask the court to make a full investigation of the premises to determine their rights and ascertain the amount of money due them.

The Porters also ask the court to have Trail subpoenaed and testify under oath concerning the sales of timber and produce back records o the real estate.

Alumni Unit Planning Hagerstown Meeting

Western Maryland Chapter, Washington College Alumni Association, will entertain visitors from the Eastern Shore college at a dinner meeting in Hagerstown today.

John J. (Bobby) Cavanaugh, this city, president and a member of the class of 1928, said the dinner will be at the Legion home, Northern Avenue, at 7:30 p. m. Husbands, wives and friends of alumni have been invited.

Among those assisting with arrangements are Nelson Kaylor, Ray McCullough, both of this city; and James Rook, Oakland.

Guests will include Frederick (Dutch) Dumschott, college business manager, and Bedford Groves, executive secretary of the general alumni association, both of Chestertown.

This is the first major get-together of the Western Maryland Chapter since it was formed here last October. Membership consists of alumni from Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick and Carroll counties.

The docket was as follows:

Mrs. Peter P. Ferrato vs. Mayor and City Council of Cumberland; Dick Pownall vs. George Construction Company; Osborne E. Wilson vs. Morgan Coal Company and Edward S. Moran and Sons; Leona Imler vs. Murphy's One Stop Service Station.

Harry W. Stottlemyer vs. Babcock and Wilcox Company; Andrew L. Rice vs. South Cumberland Planing Mill Company; Ralph W. Smith vs. Kermit William Alt; Lloyd L. Leasure vs. Curley's Inc.

Otto H. Ruehl vs. Queen City Brewing Company; Marshall W. Crawford vs. Ajax Coal Company; Carl Baker vs. Big Savage Refractories Corporation, and Stanley Wigfield vs. Mervin L. Golden.

Meeting Planned Today By Milk Producers

A meeting of the Allegany Milk Producers Cooperative Union will be held today at 8 p.m. at the LaVale Fire Hall, according to John T. Mason, temporary chairman.

Mason said dairy farmers from the tri-state area who ship milk into Cumberland are being invited to attend. Shippers from the Bedford, Berkeley Springs, Oakland and Meyersdale areas are included in the list, he added.

Earl Rider, an organizer for the AFL, will be on hand to give advice on organizing the cooperative. This is the third session of the group and hopes were expressed a permanent organization can be effected.

Three-Month County Road Report Given

During the period from January 1 through March 31 the Allegany County Roads Department spent $58,680.37, according to a report submitted to the Board of Commissioners Tuesday.

The report shows expenditures amounted to $19,560.13 per month and $931.44 per day. Equipment costs were $8,846..4; tools, $426.15; miscellaneous, $2,011.62; materials, $3,699.18; labor, $43,100.68; sick pay, $378.80 and vacation pay, $218.

Gasoline costs were $2,328.85; oil and grease, $255.71; fuel oil, $105.40; tires, $124.28; batteries, $55.92; insurance, $1,989.32; parts, $1,589.52 and labor, $2,397.14.

Purchases from each firm which did business with the county were listed. Purchases totaled $14,499.61. An inventory showed the county has 82 new tires on hand, 49 used tires and 13 recaps. Four tires were scrapped.

Local Driver Fined On Reckless Count

A local driver was fined $75 and costs on a reckless driving charge and given a suspended sentence of 90 days in the county jail as the result of an accident last month when he drove his car into a parked freight train on the Frederick Street crossing.

Trial Magistrate J. Milton Dick placed the motorist, Ralph Lange Jr., 30, of 438 Walnut Street, on probation for two years. Lange pleaded not guilty to the charge. He was represented by Attorney Milton Gerson.

Lange was arrested on the evening of April 18 by City Officer James W. Bolyard, shortly after the accident occured. Testimony revealed that although the car was jammed under the frame of a freight car and the windshield shattered, Lange suffered no injury except for a slight cut on the hand. A rigger had to be called to release the vehicle.

At the present rate, man will be doing only three per cent of all the physical work performed in the United States in 1960.

Defendant Wins In Damage Suit

The jury in a damage suit trial heard yesterday morning in Allegany County Circuit Court issued a verdict in favor of the defendant.

The suit resulted when Gilbert Meadows, of Large, Pa., and the Service Fire Insurance Company, sought $500 damages following a two-car crash October 7, 1953 on U. S. Route 40 east of here.

Presiding at the trial was Associate Judge George Henderson. The defendant was John A. Byron, RD 4, Uhl Highway, who, according to the suit, pulled out from Christie Road onto Route 40 and struck the car operated by Meadows. Total damages to the plaintiff's car came to $382.19. Byron reportedly did not stop at the intersection.

James S. Getty was counsel for Meadows. Counsel for the defendant was Earl E. Manges.

PITTSBURGH, May 5 (AP) — A union representing employes of the Blue Ridge Lines (Western Division) has rejected wage increases offered by the firm.

Rush D. Newsome, president of Division 1063, AFL Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, said Blue Ridge had offered a four-cent-an-hour increase to drivers and a six-cent-an-hour hike to maintenance men provided they continue working 48 hours a week.

The employes' contract with the firm expired last Friday, and the union has extended the pact to midnight next Friday.

Blue Ridge's Western Division employes 200 persons and operates between Pittsburgh, Washington, Uniontown and points in Maryland.

Valiant Last Stand At Dien Bien Phu

The fall of Dien Bien Phu, now virtually conceded by Gen. Cogny, French army commander in northern Viet Nam, represents the failure of a calculated risk. French paratroopers seized the airfield last November. More troops were flown in and heavy defenses were installed. The plan was to bait the Viet Minh into massive attacks at the cost of very heavy casualties. The casualties have been heavy, but apparently not prohibitive. Whether the valiant defenders of the fortress at last capitulate or fight to the last man, their defeat will be of little direct military importance, but it could prove a political and moral disaster.

Although the defenders themselves, after more than 50 days of siege, have already earned a place in military annals, their heroism can hardly provide the inspiration of a Corregidor or a Wake Island. The French are in their eighth year of war in Indochina. It has been a confused military and political war, a war of attrition. No military solution is now in sight, and what little remains in France of the will to win in Indochina is being sapped by internal Communist political maneuvers.

In World War II, first the heroic last stand at Wake Island and then the long resistance at Corregidor acted as spurs to the American people to get on with the fighting. The position of the 400 Marines on Wake was obviously hopeless. Yet with only four of their small planes remaining after the first Japanese sneak raid and with a few anti-aircraft and coast defense guns, they held out for two solid weeks before surrendering on December 23, 1941. Their surrender was influenced by the presence on the island of a thousand helpless civilian workers.

The Marines on Wake beat off two landing attempts. They downed 29 Japanese aircraft; they sank 11 ships, including a cruiser, a submarine, several destroyers and transports, at a loss to the enemy of 5,700 men.

On Corregidor Map. Gen. Wainwright held out until May 6, five months after the Pearl Harbor attack. Six days of ceaseless cannonading by the Japanese had prepared the way for enemy landing parties. Gen. Wainwright, after long years as a prisoner of war, in which he felt himself "disgraced" by the inevitable surrender, was astonished and profoundly moved to find on his return that his country hailed him as a hero.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Danger Of Geneva

What could have been accomplished at Geneva beneficial to the United States it was impossible to see at the time of the Berlin Conference, January 25 to February 18. It was then clear that John Foster Dulles, who up to the last moment was successful at Berlin, had fumbled the ball as he reached the goal posts.

Dulles is an able secretary of state but he carries on his back too heavy a load of error made by his predecessors since 1938. He cannot divest himself of this load, as his country has committed itself by treaties and agreements to a policy that has brought little but losses since the war was supposed to have ended in 1945. Such conferences as Teheran, Yalta, San Francisco and Potsdam have all been beneficial to Russia; none for the United States.

At Geneva, the Soviet Universal State labors to isolate the United States from our European allies. The stakes are high, for if Molotov and Chou En-lai succeed fully, American influence will be limited in Europe and eliminated from Asia. For Great Britain, this could mean a restoration of economic dominance over Europe by means of enormous contracts which the Russians would pay for not only in heavy cereals and other commodities, but also in gold. Should Great Britain accept Russian blandishments, it could mean a restoration of British trade in Red China.

What can the United States offer Great Britain as an offset to these enticements? Continued financial assistance is repugnant to the British because it means continued dependence and it is politically offensive in the United States. Nothing but sentimentality — a long history of friendship and our support for Great Britain in two wars —can save the relationships between these two countries.

The pay-off for the Soviet Universal State would be an anti-American settlement of the Korean and Indochina problems. The war which the Red Chinese started in Korea in October 1950 was designed to destroy the independence of Korea and to incorporate that country into the Chinese sector of the Soviet Universal State. The United States fought a war to prevent such an absorption of Korea by Red China. At Geneva, Chou En-lai is proposing a unification of the two parts of Korea which could achieve his utmost aspiration.

It is likely that before the Geneva Conference is over, fighting may again break out in Korea. It is no secret that Syngman Rhee has long planned using the forces at his disposal to keep Korea in turmoil in a suicide struggle to prevent a peaceful conquest of his country. He has, from the first, distrusted the Geneva Conference. He had anticipated that the British would oppose any American program of continued intervention in Asia.

Any compromise over Indochina can only be beneficial to Red China, which is believed already to have three divisions inside that country and a larger army based on Kweilin in Kwangsi. The partition of Indochina into two areas, one held by France, the other by the Communists, cannot but work out favorably for the Communists. A prolonged truce can only work out beneficially for the Communists as it did in Manchuria in 1946 and in Panmunjom in Korea in 1951-53.

Only some form of international intervention can save Indochina from the Communists. Such intervention the United States is willing to undertake provided other nations, particularly Great Britain, join even by token forces. Thus far, Great Britain has declined to join with the United States in any such effort.

Indochina differs from Korea by the technicality that in Indochina it is assumed that a native population has risen in revolt against an alien exploiter. While there is a degree of truth in such an assumption, the reality of the situation is that the conquest of that country would open Thailand and Burma to war and conquest by the Soviet Universal State. The British apparently are willing to chance their eventual elimination as a trading nation and the United States is unwilling to go it alone.

At worst, what Geneva can achieve is the diplomatic isolation of the United States and a complete reorientation of American policy, which since 1945 has been based on the ideas of General George Marshall. It could even be an enforced reversion to the "no entangling alliances" policy of George Washington, which prevailed among us for 128 years, from 1789 to 1917.

Winston Churchill Outtalked Radford On Intervention In Indochina War

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Two of the most persuasive personalities in the Western world — Winston Churchill and Adm. Arthur Radford — met in London for a vital unpublicized talk on Indochina the other day and, though it hasn't been announced, Churchill proved himself the most persuasive.

The question at issue was whether Great Britain should support the United States and back up our proposed intervention in Indochina.

Secretary of State Dulles, who also talked with Churchill on his earlier trip to Europe, got nowhere with him. The aged and forceful prime minister of England would not even join the United States in a declaration of warning to Russia.

Following this, Admiral Radford stopped off in London to try his luck with Churchill. Radford is considered one of the most dynamic men in Washington. In fact, he won his job as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff partly by his persuasive personality. For, when President-elect Eisenhower stopped off at Iwo Jima on his trip to Korea, Radford met him, took Ike for an hour's walk while the plane refueled, and during that time sold him on a lot of ideas such as rebuilding Chiang Kai-shek's navy for use against the Chinese mainland.

Ike was so impressed that he asked Radford to accompany him on the remainder of the trip to Korea.

Since then Radford has been the only member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff who has favored U. S. intervention in Indochina. But he has managed to sell Eisenhower on that policy — provided our Western allies went along.

So, with Dulles having failed to win Churchill, Admiral Radford himself stopped to see him.

The prime minister, however, was adamant. He said that American intervention in Indochina would be the biggest mistake the United States could ever make. And Radford, despite his logic and eloquence, could not budge him.

McCarthy's Private G-Man

There was a good reason why Joe McCarthy got his back up and protested so vigorously when it was proposed last week that his chief investigator, Don Surine, be called to testify regarding the distorted Secretary St vens - David Schine photo. McCarthy even threatened to resume the chairmanship of the committee — a power incidentally which he does not have — if Surine was called. He so scared timid temporary Chairman Mundt, however, that Surine was not called.

Reason for McCarthy concern was that Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri has shrewdly asked each ex-FBI man who has testified so far regarding his severance from the FBI. He has established that they all resigned in good standing.

Not so, however, with Surine. Surine, who has been with McCarthy longer than any other investigator and is the man closest to him, was fired from the FBI. That's one reason why McCarthy didn't want Surine called to the witness stand.

Surine was fired in connection with a White slave case in Baltimore.

This fact was developed by the Senate Rules subcommittee which probed McCarthy's finances in 1951. At first the FBI tried to protect Surine — perhaps indicative of the close liaison between J. Edgar Hoover and McCarthy. Later, when Senator Hennings of Missouri persisted in wanting to know the full facts regarding Surine, he received an official letter stating that Surine had tried to resign but had not been permitted to do so.

However, Surine has continued on the taxpayers' payroll as McCarthy's No. 1 investigator. He was the man charged by William Fedder, the Baltimore printer, with kidnapping him during the Maryland campaign against Senator Tydings. He's also among those who scared the mother-in-law of Arthur Peirson during the investigation of his partner, Assistant Secretary of Defense Struve Hensel.

Surine also went to New York to probe Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg, before the erroneous smear charges were made that she was a Communist. The Senate, however, unanimously rebuffed the charges and confirmed Mrs. Rosenberg.

Finally the faked picture of Earl Browder and Senator Tydings, used in the Maryland campaign, is strangely reminiscent of the "trimmed" picture of Secretary of the Army Stevens and G. David Schine.

No wonder McCarthy protested so vigorously when it was proposed that Don Surine be called to the witness stand.

McCarthy And Taxes

A lot of people don't realize it — including at first this writer and probably the secretary of the army — but it was one Dwight D. Eisenhower who played into McCarthy's hands by permitting him to examine income tax returns.

Without an order from the President, it's a penitentiary offense for the Treasury to give tax returns to anyone, even a senator. However, on February 19, 1953, Eisenhower signed a blanket executive order, No. 10435, giving the McCarthy Committee and other investigating committees the power to get any income tax returns they wanted merely by writing a letter to the Treasury.

Cleavage Between Britain And U.S. May Be Repaired

By David Lawrence

GENEVA — Efforts are being made to repair the cleavage that developed 10 days ago between Great Britain and the United States, and it may be said there is a fair chance of getting back on the track of Allied unity.

Whatever the basic cause of the misunderstanding, the fact is that a painful impression of disunity was created upon the minds of American officials both here and in Washington when the British cabinet seemed to veer away from the principle of "united action" which Secretary Dulles had carried away as approved after his last visit to London just before the Geneva Conference began.

Timing Was Wrong

It is most discouraging to read here the erroneous interpretations which have appeared in some American newspapers concerning the efforts of Secretary Dulles. It is just as wrong to say he lost his leverage here because of what various Republican senators back home were saying as to argue that an alleged American desire to intervene immediately in Indochina was rebuffed by the British. What went wrong was the timing. There was a sudden reversal in London due to the discovery — after the original commitment to Mr. Dulles was given—that the conference of Asian prime ministers in Ceylon was about to meet and that any implementation of a collective-action policy might thereupon muddy the waters there. As it happened, while the resolutions adopted at Ceylon were by no means palatable, they were not as bad as might have resulted if the British government had not exercised a restraining influence.

What some American readers perhaps do not realize is that the United States came here with a constructive and far - reaching policy of collective security to be worked out for Southeast Asia and that the departure of Mr. Dulles, far from being a retreat as the Communists are picturing it, was really an important step on his part toward a reinvigoration of the broad American program from the vantage point of Washington rather than Geneva. There are better opportunities in Washington than there are here for consultation between the various nations concerned on a specific project like the Southeastern Asia Alliance, especially the military aspects.

Dulles Working On Plan

America's policy has for its object the building up of a deterrent factor which is designed to bring peace rather than war to Southeast Asia. But it requires a firm hand and a resoluteness of spirit, to which political leaders on both sides of the aisle in Congress can contribute a great deal by studying the basic principles involved rather than going off half-cocked with criticism of the piecemeal details. These mistakenly portray the administration as being eager to get into the Indochina War but being prevented either by a British cabinet rejection of such proposals or by the lukewarm attitude of American public opinion.

The truth is Secretary Dulles is working on a plan for the Southeast Asian problem which, viewed in either its long-range or short-range aspects, can become a historic move in the world toward assuring peace for a large area of the earth's surface. American public opinion, of course, is not ready for such concrete proposals as the submission to Congress of a joint resolution empowering the President to use our armed forces to maintain peace in Southeast Asia. There is as yet no understanding in America that the checkmating of aggression in Southeast Asia can have as direct a bearing on the safety of the United States as the American policy or repelling aggression in Korea was a step taken for the protection of our interests in Japan and the Philippines.

Just because the British cabinet hesitated and an ephemeral phase of the problem—the rise and fall of military fortunes in Dien Bien Phu—got the headlines is no reason to underrate the main value of the Dulles policy. Though stymied last week, it now bids fair to progress toward a logical and deserved acceptance.

Collective Idea Irrepressible

It should be borne in mind that if the thesis is accepted that military force is the only language the Communists understand, then the assembling of local allies in and around Indochina is of crucial importance, whether consummated next week or next year. For the relevant fact is that, when America and her allies act in unison to plan a military alliance for Southeast Asia, the Communists are put on notice. It would be better for them to agree to a withdrawal of their forces and a peaceful solution now in Indochina than to assume, as they mistakenly do today, that the Western Allies have weakened and that the Dulles plan was torpedoed in Paris or London or both.

The truth is collective action for collective security is irrepressible as a policy. Its acceptance is inevitable by our allies, and the Geneva Conference before many days have passed will reflect this very important turn of events as American leadership once more comes to the fore.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Looks like old days with the New York Central and the New York, New Haven and Heartless up for grabs.

Seems like happy times on the Erie when Jay Gould and Jim Fiske started the first subway by running the Erie into the ground.

The real definition of swank in Manhattan is taking the Boston Express to ride from Grand Central to 125th Street.

On May 26 Bob Young is after the New York Central to complete his set. Bob wants the privilege of being served in the dining car after it's dropped at Schenectady.

A Chicago group is after the Minneapolis and St. Louis combination. They don't like the geraniums the management puts in the flower beds at the whistle stops.

Bob Young will vote his proxies at the annual rodeo of the stockholders in Albany. He expects to win by a narrow gauge margin. On one of Bob's mountain lines the roadbed is so rough all the chef can serve is scrambled eggs.

They Fight For Us!

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

As these words are written, the perimeter of Dien Bien Phu surrounds a total area of hardly more than half a square mile.

The Communist enemy holds the heights around the little bowl in the war-scarred jungle. His big guns, his mortars small and great, his lesser arms, all pour their unceasing fire into the narrow space of the fortress—which is a fortress more by virtue of simple human courage than of barbed wire and earthworks.

The murderous, terrible fire has now gone on, with little slackening, for so many weeks that day must follow day with none to count the time. By night, the attackers come on, screaming their battle cries, piling up on the barbed wire, fighting hand to hand with the defenders in the hot steaming darkness.

By day, the enemy saps his way forward to the earthworks of the perimeter, to prepare his next attack. And the exhausted defenders throw up new earthworks; string new barbed wire; and pour out their blood in counter-attacks, to regain vital ground that has been lost by night.

Within the fortress, the weather is a life and death matter; for the heavy tropic rains have begun, and all depend upon air supply and air reinforcement. If the day dawns without too thick an overcast, then the bombers will come to dive down on the enemy guns. The lumbering transports will vomit their cargoes of food and ammunition and barbed wire and even men.

Cheered By Wounded

The parachutes, scarlet and white, sulphur colored and pale blue, float with foolish indecision through the air that smells of battle. The perimeter is so small. Even when the transports brave the A. A. fire to come in low, a good many supplies go to the enemy. But the men—the desperately needed reinforcements— they can manipulate their shroud-lines to correct the wind drift, unless they are among those who have volunteered to jump with no jump training.

Even the wounded, the all too many wounded who lie upon their stretchers with no surcease in sight, cheer these men who have volunteered to join a fight that the world regards as hopeless. There have been many of these volunteers from the French Indochinese Army—150 in just one of the last days. Their act is one of the bright pages in the story of a glorious feat of arms.

Of the 14,000 defenders of the fortress, few now lack wounds of some sort, but ordinary wounds are treated as things of little consequence. Those who can fight, fight. But those who cannot fight, now number nearly one-third of the total. They are a great weight, a heavy burden, that the still-fighting men cheerfully bear, from the knowledge in each man's heart that his turn may come at any time.

In all, there are perhaps 10,000 men who can still fight, of the French parachute battalions, the Legion, the Moroccans, the Algerians and the Viet Namese. They now stand against the furious onslaught of an ever-reinforced enemy who has 40,000 men. Yet Christian de Castries, the sardonic, insanely brave leader of the defense, continues to inform headquarters that the danger at Dien Bien Phu is somewhat exaggerated.

Fight For Free World

That is how one pictures the fight at Dien Bien Phu, if one has seen anything of this Indochina War and the French and colonial army that carries on the war.

Are the friends one made when one was there in this fight at Dien Bien Phu? How about the tough young major, who led the drive on that village that we took at dusk? He had another year to serve, and was a great one for volunteering. How about the regimental Don Camillo, the stout, genial, chaplain, who played mess officer when he was not in the front line? Is Don Camillo in the fortress, performing culinary miracles with the parachuted rations when he is not consoling the wounded with his rough, humorous tenderness? And how about the frail-looking French officer, the acquaintance of Washington days, who said, "It was such a relief to be in Indochina after your unhealthy Pentagon?" Is he there too?

It is impossible not to wonder about these men, and how many others! It is impossible, above all, to hurry every morning to find out whether the French flag still flies over Dien Bien Phu, in the inferno fire, in the cruel mud, in the narrow perimeter where the few defy the many. Maybe, as these words are written, the final onslaught will be overwhelming De Castries and his brave men. No one can tell.

If they are overwhelmed, we shall know soon enough that these men have fought for us and the free world. By their divisions and delays, by their weaknesses and their compromises, the leaders of the West have contrived to make the fight at Dien Bien Phu into a great world turning point. Here, in this Indochinese valley, the dam can break and the flood of communism can pour out over Asia. If that is to happen, the chain-reaction of disaster will quickly teach us to see the full and desperate import of this fight against fearful odds halfway around the world.

Bruised Heart And Heart Attack Give Similar Signals

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A middle-aged man was struck across the lower chest by a metal beam. He was in agony and complained of severe pain beneath the breastbone. An ambulance was called and the man was whisked to the hospital and put to bed without delay. X-ray revealed two fractured ribs but the physicians were of the opinion that the victim had more pain than could be accounted foron this basis. Electrocardiogram changes were in keeping with a heart attack.

A healthy young soldier was running an obstacle course when he missed his step and struck his chest forcibly against the wall. He arose, climbed the barrier, and ran the remaining 50 yards to complete the course. The chap became pale and giddy and, before collapsing complained of a tight, painful sensation in the chest. Electrocardiogram changes were in keeping with a heart attack.

Did these men have heart attacks (coronary thrombosis) or were their hearts injured during the mishaps? Subsequent studies proved the latter and the alterations in the electrocardiograms were those of contusion of the heart muscle. The tracing is indistinguishable from coronary thrombosis and the story of the injury offers the only clew to the ensuing damage. In these two instances, a bona fide accident was involved, followed by immediate distress. On the other hand, when pain appears several days after severe exertion or trivial trauma ,it is difficult to blame the injury. Such cases make intricate medicolegal problems.

One of my first cases was a retired school teacher in her late 70s. She had been to a lecture and on the way home, the car in which she was riding was struck broadside a busy intersection. Several hours later, the lady suffered pain beneath the breastbone and was sent to the hospital for emergency care. One hip was bruised and painful, but there was no evidence of chest injury: I concluded that the excitement associated the accident was responsible for the attack of coronary thrombosis. This was logical as she was known to have had high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries. She was ripe for a heart attack and almost anything might have caused a clot to form at that particular time.

One of the most common forms of heart injury is the steering wheel accident, due to the force exerted on the chest by the wheel when the car comes to a sudden stop. The organ is squeezed between the breastbone and the spinal column, and damage varies from a bruise to a bleeding laceration. Occasionally the valve is torn or a rent is found in the sac surrounding the heart. Now and then prompt surgery is needed to stop bleeding and repair the damaged heart.

TOMORROW: Is arteriosclerosis inevitable?

BIRTHMARK

Mrs. W. writes: Are birthmarks always present at birth?

REPLY

The majority are, or appear soon thereafter. One study of 1,001 cases showed 73 per cent present at birth and 85 per cent before the first birthday; in another series of 253, 65.2 per cent of the babies had the lesions at birth and in 88 per cent, the birthmarks were noted before the age of 3.

STABILITY

C. C. writes: Will you tell about the equilibrium and how it affects a person ?

REPLY

Equilibrium is a fancy word for balance. The two important centers in the body are the labyrinth of the ear and the cerebellar part of the brain. Disturbances in either area will lead to dizziness and falling.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

"I'm sure you're right," admitted the neighbor, "but there's nothing I can do about it. This confounded critter kicked me in the seat three years ago and I ain't spoken to him since."

Valiant Last Stand At Dien Bien Phu

The fall of Dien Bien Phu, now virtually conceded by Gen. Cogny, French army commander in northern Viet Nam, represents the failure of a calculated risk. French paratroopers seized the airfield last November. More troops were flown in and heavy defenses were installed. The plan was to bait the Viet Minh into massive attacks at the cost of very heavy casualties. The casualties have been heavy, but apparently not prohibitive. Whether the valiant defenders of the fortress at last capitulate or fight to the last man, their defeat will be of little direct military importance, but it could prove a political and moral disaster.

Although the defenders themselves, after more than 50 days of siege, have already earned a place in military annals, their heroism can hardly provide the inspiration of a Corregidor or a Wake Island. The French are in their eighth year of war in Indochina. It has been a confused military and political war, a war of attrition. No military solution is now in sight, and what little remains in France of the will to win in Indochina is being sapped by internal Communist political maneuvers.

In World War II, first the heroic last stand at Wake Island and then the long resistance at Corregidor acted as spurs to the American people to get on with the fighting. The position of the 400 Marines on Wake was obviously hopeless. Yet with only four of their small planes remaining after the first Japanese sneak raid and with a few anti-aircraft and coast defense guns, they held out for two solid weeks before surrendering on December 23, 1941. Their surrender was influenced by the presence on the island of a thousand helpless civilian workers.

The Marines on Wake beat off two landing attempts. They downed 29 Japanese aircraft; they sank 11 ships, including a cruiser, a submarine, several destroyers and transports, at a loss to the enemy of 5,700 men.

On Corregidor Map. Gen. Wainwright held out until May 6, five months after the Pearl Harbor attack. Six days of ceaseless cannonading by the Japanese had prepared the way for enemy landing parties. Gen. Wainwright, after long years as a prisoner of war, in which he felt himself "disgraced" by the inevitable surrender, was astonished and profoundly moved to find on his return that his country hailed him as a hero.

These Days

The Danger Of Geneva

What could have been accomplished at Geneva beneficial to the United States it was impossible to see at the time of the Berlin Conference, January 25 to February 18. It was then clear that John Foster Dulles, who up to the last moment was successful at Berlin, had fumbled the ball as he reached the goal posts.

Dulles is an able secretary of state but he carries on his back too heavy a load of error made by his predecessors since 1938. He cannot divest himself of this load, as his country has committed itself by treaties and agreements to a policy that has brought little but losses since the war was supposed to have ended in 1945. Such conferences as Teheran, Yalta, San Francisco and Potsdam have all been beneficial to Russia; none for the United States.

At Geneva, the Soviet Universal State labors to isolate the United States from our European allies. The stakes are high, for if Molotov and Chou En-lai succeed fully, American influence will be limited in Europe and eliminated from Asia. For Great Britain, this could mean a restoration of economic dominance over Europe by means of enormous contracts which the Russians would pay for not only in heavy cereals and other commodities, but also in gold. Should Great Britain accept Russian blandishments, it could mean a restoration of British trade in Red China.

What can the United States offer Great Britain as an offset to these enticements? Continued financial assistance is repugnant to the British because it means continued dependence and it is politically offensive in the United States. Nothing but sentimentality — a long history of friendship and our support for Great Britain in two wars —can save the relationships between these two countries.

The pay-off for the Soviet Universal State would be an anti-American settlement of the Korean and Indochina problems. The war which the Red Chinese started in Korea in October 1950 was designed to destroy the independence of Korea and to incorporate that country into the Chinese sector of the Soviet Universal State. The United States fought a war to prevent such an absorption of Korea by Red China. At Geneva, Chou En-lai is proposing a unification of the two parts of Korea which could achieve his utmost aspiration.

It is likely that before the Geneva Conference is over, fighting may again break out in Korea. It is no secret that Syngman Rhee has long planned using the forces at his disposal to keep Korea in turmoil in a suicide struggle to prevent a peaceful conquest of his country. He has, from the first, distrusted the Geneva Conference. He had anticipated that the British would oppose any American program of continued intervention in Asia.

Any compromise over Indochina can only be beneficial to Red China, which is believed already to have three divisions inside that country and a larger army based on Kweilin in Kwangsi. The partition of Indochina into two areas, one held by France, the other by the Communists, cannot but work out favorably for the Communists. A prolonged truce can only work out beneficially for the Communists as it did in Manchuria in 1946 and in Panmunjom in Korea in 1951-53.

Only some form of international intervention can save Indochina from the Communists. Such intervention the United States is willing to undertake provided other nations, particularly Great Britain, join even by token forces. Thus far, Great Britain has declined to join with the United States in any such effort.

Indochina differs from Korea by the technicality that in Indochina it is assumed that a native population has risen in revolt against an alien exploiter. While there is a degree of truth in such an assumption, the reality of the situation is that the conquest of that country would open Thailand and Burma to war and conquest by the Soviet Universal State. The British apparently are willing to chance their eventual elimination as a trading nation and the United States is unwilling to go it alone.

At worst, what Geneva can achieve is the diplomatic isolation of the United States and a complete reorientation of American policy, which since 1945 has been based on the ideas of General George Marshall. It could even be an enforced reversion to the "no entangling alliances" policy of George Washington, which prevailed among us for 128 years, from 1789 to 1917.

Winston Churchill Outtalked Radford On Intervention In Indochina War

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Two of the most persuasive personalities in the Western world — Winston Churchill and Adm. Arthur Radford — met in London for a vital unpublicized talk on Indochina the other day and, though it hasn't been announced, Churchill proved himself the most persuasive.

The question at issue was whether Great Britain should support the United States and back up our proposed intervention in Indochina.

Secretary of State Dulles, who also talked with Churchill on his earlier trip to Europe, got nowhere with him. The aged and forceful prime minister of England would not even join the United States in a declaration of warning to Russia.

Following this, Admiral Radford stopped off in London to try his luck with Churchill. Radford is considered one of the most dynamic men in Washington. In fact, he won his job as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff partly by his persuasive personality. For, when President-elect Eisenhower stopped off at Iwo Jima on his trip to Korea, Radford met him, took Ike for an hour's walk while the plane refueled, and during that time sold him on a lot of ideas such as rebuilding Chiang Kai-shek's navy for use against the Chinese mainland.

Ike was so impressed that he asked Radford to accompany him on the remainder of the trip to Korea.

Since then Radford has been the only member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff who has favored U. S. intervention in Indochina. But he has managed to sell Eisenhower on that policy — provided our Western allies went along.

So, with Dulles having failed to win Churchill, Admiral Radford himself stopped to see him.

The prime minister, however, was adamant. He said that American intervention in Indochina would be the biggest mistake the United States could ever make. And Radford, despite his logic and eloquence, could not budge him.

McCarthy's Private G-Man

There was a good reason why Joe McCarthy got his back up and protested so vigorously when it was proposed last week that his chief investigator, Don Surine, be called to testify regarding the distorted Secretary St vens - David Schine photo. McCarthy even threatened to resume the chairmanship of the committee — a power incidentally which he does not have — if Surine was called. He so scared timid temporary Chairman Mundt, however, that Surine was not called.

Reason for McCarthy concern was that Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri has shrewdly asked each ex-FBI man who has testified so far regarding his severance from the FBI. He has established that they all resigned in good standing.

Not so, however, with Surine. Surine, who has been with McCarthy longer than any other investigator and is the man closest to him, was fired from the FBI. That's one reason why McCarthy didn't want Surine called to the witness stand.

Surine was fired in connection with a White slave case in Baltimore.

This fact was developed by the Senate Rules subcommittee which probed McCarthy's finances in 1951. At first the FBI tried to protect Surine — perhaps indicative of the close liaison between J. Edgar Hoover and McCarthy. Later, when Senator Hennings of Missouri persisted in wanting to know the full facts regarding Surine, he received an official letter stating that Surine had tried to resign but had not been permitted to do so.

However, Surine has continued on the taxpayers' payroll as McCarthy's No. 1 investigator. He was the man charged by William Fedder, the Baltimore printer, with kidnapping him during the Maryland campaign against Senator Tydings. He's also among those who scared the mother-in-law of Arthur Peirson during the investigation of his partner, Assistant Secretary of Defense Struve Hensel.

Surine also went to New York to probe Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg, before the erroneous smear charges were made that she was a Communist. The Senate, however, unanimously rebuffed the charges and confirmed Mrs. Rosenberg.

Finally the faked picture of Earl Browder and Senator Tydings, used in the Maryland campaign, is strangely reminiscent of the "trimmed" picture of Secretary of the Army Stevens and G. David Schine.

No wonder McCarthy protested so vigorously when it was proposed that Don Surine be called to the witness stand.

McCarthy And Taxes

A lot of people don't realize it — including at first this writer and probably the secretary of the army — but it was one Dwight D. Eisenhower who played into McCarthy's hands by permitting him to examine income tax returns.

Without an order from the President, it's a penitentiary offense for the Treasury to give tax returns to anyone, even a senator. However, on February 19, 1953, Eisenhower signed a blanket executive order, No. 10435, giving the McCarthy Committee and other investigating committees the power to get any income tax returns they wanted merely by writing a letter to the Treasury.

Cleavage Between Britain And U.S. May Be Repaired

By David Lawrence

GENEVA — Efforts are being made to repair the cleavage that developed 10 days ago between Great Britain and the United States, and it may be said there is a fair chance of getting back on the track of Allied unity.

Whatever the basic cause of the misunderstanding, the fact is that a painful impression of disunity was created upon the minds of American officials both here and in Washington when the British cabinet seemed to veer away from the principle of "united action" which Secretary Dulles had carried away as approved after his last visit to London just before the Geneva Conference began.

Timing Was Wrong

It is most discouraging to read here the erroneous interpretations which have appeared in some American newspapers concerning the efforts of Secretary Dulles. It is just as wrong to say he lost his leverage here because of what various Republican senators back home were saying as to argue that an alleged American desire to intervene immediately in Indochina was rebuffed by the British. What went wrong was the timing. There was a sudden reversal in London due to the discovery — after the original commitment to Mr. Dulles was given—that the conference of Asian prime ministers in Ceylon was about to meet and that any implementation of a collective-action policy might thereupon muddy the waters there. As it happened, while the resolutions adopted at Ceylon were by no means palatable, they were not as bad as might have resulted if the British government had not exercised a restraining influence.

What some American readers perhaps do not realize is that the United States came here with a constructive and far - reaching policy of collective security to be worked out for Southeast Asia and that the departure of Mr. Dulles, far from being a retreat as the Communists are picturing it, was really an important step on his part toward a reinvigoration of the broad American program from the vantage point of Washington rather than Geneva. There are better opportunities in Washington than there are here for consultation between the various nations concerned on a specific project like the Southeastern Asia Alliance, especially the military aspects.

Dulles Working On Plan

America's policy has for its object the building up of a deterrent factor which is designed to bring peace rather than war to Southeast Asia. But it requires a firm hand and a resoluteness of spirit, to which political leaders on both sides of the aisle in Congress can contribute a great deal by studying the basic principles involved rather than going off half-cocked with criticism of the piecemeal details. These mistakenly portray the administration as being eager to get into the Indochina War but being prevented either by a British cabinet rejection of such proposals or by the lukewarm attitude of American public opinion.

The truth is Secretary Dulles is working on a plan for the Southeast Asian problem which, viewed in either its long-range or short-range aspects, can become a historic move in the world toward assuring peace for a large area of the earth's surface. American public opinion, of course, is not ready for such concrete proposals as the submission to Congress of a joint resolution empowering the President to use our armed forces to maintain peace in Southeast Asia. There is as yet no understanding in America that the checkmating of aggression in Southeast Asia can have as direct a bearing on the safety of the United States as the American policy or repelling aggression in Korea was a step taken for the protection of our interests in Japan and the Philippines.

Just because the British cabinet hesitated and an ephemeral phase of the problem—the rise and fall of military fortunes in Dien Bien Phu—got the headlines is no reason to underrate the main value of the Dulles policy. Though stymied last week, it now bids fair to progress toward a logical and deserved acceptance.

Collective Idea Irrepressible

It should be borne in mind that if the thesis is accepted that military force is the only language the Communists understand, then the assembling of local allies in and around Indochina is of crucial importance, whether consummated next week or next year. For the relevant fact is that, when America and her allies act in unison to plan a military alliance for Southeast Asia, the Communists are put on notice. It would be better for them to agree to a withdrawal of their forces and a peaceful solution now in Indochina than to assume, as they mistakenly do today, that the Western Allies have weakened and that the Dulles plan was torpedoed in Paris or London or both.

The truth is collective action for collective security is irrepressible as a policy. Its acceptance is inevitable by our allies, and the Geneva Conference before many days have passed will reflect this very important turn of events as American leadership once more comes to the fore.

Electrocardiogram changes were in keeping with a heart attack.

Did these men have heart attacks (coronary thrombosis) or were their hearts injured during the mishaps? Subsequent studies proved the latter and the alterations in the electrocardiograms were those of contusion of the heart muscle. The tracing is indistinguishable from coronary thrombosis and the story of the injury offers the only clew to the ensuing damage. In these two instances, a bona fide accident was involved, followed by immediate distress. On the other hand, when pain appears several days after severe exertion or trivial trauma it is difficult to blame the injury. Such cases make intricate medicolegal problems.

One of my first cases was a retired school teacher in her late 70s. She had been to a lecture and on the way home, the car in which she was riding was struck broadside a busy intersection. Several hours later, the lady suffered pain beneath the breastbone and was sent to the hospital for emergency care. One hip was bruised and painful, but there was no evidence of chest injury: I concluded that the excitement associated the accident was responsible for the attack of coronary thrombosis. This was logical as she was known to have had high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries. She was ripe for a heart attack and almost anything might have caused a clot to form at that particular time.

One of the most common forms of heart injury is the steering wheel accident, due to the force exerted on the chest by the wheel when the car comes to a sudden stop. The organ is squeezed between the breastbone and the spinal column, and damage varies from a bruise to a bleeding laceration. Occasionally the valve is torn or a rent is found in the sac surrounding the heart. Now and then prompt surgery is needed to stop bleeding and repair the damaged heart.

TOMORROW: Is arteriosclerosis inevitable?

BIRTHMARK

Mrs. W. writes: Are birthmarks always present at birth?

REPLY

The majority are, or appear soon thereafter. One study of 1,001 cases showed 73 per cent present at birth and 85 per cent before the first birthday; in another series of 253, 65.2 per cent of the babies had the lesions at birth and in 88 per cent, the birthmarks were noted before the age of 3.

STABILITY

C. C. writes: Will you tell about the equilibrium and how it affects a person ?

REPLY

Equilibrium is a fancy word for balance. The two important centers in the body are the labyrinth of the ear and the cerebellar part of the brain. Disturbances in either area will lead to dizziness and falling.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

William Faulkner had a neighbor in Oxford, Miss., who was having a mite of trouble plowing one morning. "Think you'd get along better with that mule," pointed out the distinguished author, "if you'd say 'gee' and 'haw' to him occasionally instead of riling him by yanking at those reins."

"I'm sure you're right," admitted the neighbor, "but there's nothing I can do about it. This confounded critter kicked me in the seat three years ago and I ain't spoken to him since."

A dipso down at Bellevue insisted that he had been with the circus before hitting the skids. Investigation proved, surprisingly enough, that he was telling the truth. "We used him in our Congress of Freaks," a circus official explained. "We billed him as 'The Petrified Man.' Finally had to let him go, however. It cost too much to keep him petrified."

Fort Hill Edges Flintstone, 1-0; Elk Garden Scores, 10-4

Bloop Single By Wolford Wins Contest

Sentinels' Only Hit Beats Jim Fletcher In Initial Inning

A bloop single by Fred Wolford with two out in the first inning scored Gaien McGregor from third with the only run of the game as Fort Hill's Sentinels edged Flintstone 1-0 in a tight hurlers' duel at Flintstone yesterday in the Bi-State Baseball Conference.

The win enabled Fort Hill to retain their lead over LaSalle as they chalked up their sixth win against one defeat in the nine-team schoolboy circuit as Jesse Markley allowed the losers just two safe blows.

The loss was a heartbreaker for knuckleballer Jim Fletcher as Wolford's hit was the only safe blow the Flintstone righthander allowed. McGregor opened the game by reaching first on first baseman D. Bible's error of his ground ball. The Fort Hill initial sacker moved to second and third on successive ground outs by Bruce Lynn and Dercil Kline. He scored when Wolford's bloop fly ball fell just beyond the reach of the Flintstone second sacker's reach for Fort Hill's only hit.

Fletcher, in losing his sixth straight game, gave up two walks and hit a batter while striking out six. He was never in trouble after the first inning.

Bobby Cavanaugh's Sentinels kept the hard-hitting Flintstone aggregation at bay and Markley was in trouble in the sixth when with two out Smith singled and Dwaine Morris doubled for both Flintstone hits. However Markley induced Fletcher to ground back to the box to leave both runners stranded.

Markley walked two and struck out eight enemy batsmen as he chalked up his third win against one loss. The setback was Flintstone's seventh without victory in the conference. The lineups:

Tops Romney Tossers, Ties For PVC Lead

Turner Is Returned Victor Over Pioneers For Second Time

ELK GARDEN, W. Va., May 5—Coach Paul Kalbaugh's Elk Garden tossers scored a 10-4 triumph over the Romney High Pioneers here today in a Potomac Valley Conference game to tie Keyser for the league lead with a 4-1 record.

Richard Turner, fastballing righthander for the Elks scored his second straight victory over the visiting Romney nine as he tossed a three-hitter and struck out 12.

Turner beat Romney April 23 at Romney by a 6-3 score. He was backed today by a 12-hit attack by his teammates, including a double and triple by Lawrence Hanlin and a two-bagger off the bat of Dwaine Murphy.

Except for a home run by Grapes with a man aboard in the third inning to account for Romney's first two scores Turner was never seriously endangered as Elk Garden tallied at least once in every inning.

Besides Murphy and Hanlin, John Bruckey and Turner joined in the heavy artillery for Elk Garden with two hits apiece. Roger Parker, Ray Haines and Grapes shared Romney's three hits.

Haines was the losing pitcher, dropping his third decision as against only one victory for Romney which now sports a 5-4 conference record.

Romney has the distinction, however, of holding the only victory over Keyser, a 12-8 decision last month. Elk Garden and Keyser will meet Keyser for the second time Friday at Elk Garden. The Tornado handed the Elks their only loss in the circuit, 10-6, April 29. The lineups:

New York DA Denies Fight Fix Probes

Three Bouts Said Being Investigated

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—District Attorney Frank Hogan's office today denied a report published in the New York Post that it was investigating three New York fights "fixed" by crooked gamblers.

Jimmy Cannon's story in the Post said the district attorney and the New York State Athletic Commission were probing three fights, two in Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway and one in Madison Square Garden.

A spokesman for Hogan said "this office is not and has not in the recent past conducted any investigation of so-called fixed fights." He said men from the office did meet with Chairman Bob Christenberry of the Athletic Commission "some time ago" and said "he turned over nothing to us that would warrant, any grand jury action."

The commission also issued a statement confirming a meeting with Hogan's staff and added it "maintains constant scrutiny over all matters pertaining to affairs under its jurisdiction."

Cannon's story said the original tip on the gambling syndicate came from Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club which promotes in the New York Garden and in various other cities. Markson turned the tip over to Christenberry who reportedly was impressed because Markson's information tallied with reports turned up by commission investigators.

"My information didn't pertain to any fight but to a betting ring," said Markson. "It was not limited to any one sport.

"I went to Christenberry with information that I thought had substance. But it just didn't stand up.

"Any time I hear rumors or talk about any fight, I go running to the commission. Often they have heard the rumors before I tell them. It is an alert, vigilant commission."

Seven Teams Name Managers For Year

The Cumberland Hot Stove League's eight teams last night drafted all 57 eligible Little League players to their rosters in a meeting held at City Hall with city recreation director Robert E. Pence in charge.

Potomac State Tossers Blank Frostburg 2-0

Ed Wimer Outduels Harry McFarland

KEYSER, W. Va., May 5—Ed Wimer ouedueled Harry McFarland in a neat pitchers' battle here today as Potomac State's Catamounts blanked Frostburg State Teachers 2-0 in a game played in one hour and 50 minutes.

It marked the second time Potomac was returned the winner in a meeting between the two teams this year, the Cats having turned back Frostburg 9-4 April 27 at Frostburg.

Single tallies in the second and fifth innings were all Wimer needed as he tossed a five-hitter at the Frostburg batsmen and fanned seven.

Bob Beck led the second inning off with a single and moved to second when Bill Kirk erred on Ralph Holder's ground ball to short. Clyde Peer's sharp single to center scored Beck with the first Potomac run.

In the fifth with one out Jay Gorman walked and stole second. He scored moments later on Fred Lee's bingle to left with the insurance run.

Beck again led off an inning with a hit when he tripled in the sixth frame but was left stranded when McFarland bore down and retired Holder on strikes and Peer and Gene Gorman on ground balls to the infield.

The only time Wimer experienced trouble was in the ninth when Paul Bailey walked and Buddy Poland singled with one away. After Bob Kirk advanced the runners with an infield out, Wimer passed George Wolfe to load the hassocks. He got Bill Kirk on a tap back to the box to preserve his shutout.

The win was the sixth in 14 games for Potomac while Frostburg suffered its seventh loss in eight games. The lineups:

Fort Hill Edges Flintstone, 1-0; Elk Garden Scores, 10-4

Bloop Single By Wolford Wins Contest

Sentinels' Only Hit Beats Jim Fletcher In Initial Inning

A bloop single by Fred Wolford with two out in the first inning scored Galen McGregor from third with the only run of the game as Fort Hill's Sentinels edged Flintstone 1-0 in a tight hurlers' duel at Flintstone yesterday in the Bi-State Baseball Conference.

The win enabled Fort Hill to retain their lead over LaSalle as they chalked up their sixth win against one defeat in the nine-team schoolboy circuit as Jesse Markley allowed the losers just two safe blows.

The loss was a heartbreaker for knuckleballer Jim Fletcher as Wolford's hit was the only safe blow the Flintstone righthander allowed. McGregor opened the game by reaching first on first baseman D. Bible's error of his ground ball. The Fort Hill initial sacker moved to second and third on successive ground outs by Bruce Lynn and Dercil Kline. He scored when Wolford's bloop fly ball fell just beyond the reach of the Flintstone second sacker's reach for Fort Hill's only hit.

Fletcher, in losing his sixth straight game, gave up two walks and hit a batter while striking out six. He was never in trouble after the first inning.

Bobby Cavanaugh's Sentinels kept the hard-hitting Flintstone aggregation at bay and Markley was in trouble in the sixth when with two out Smith singled and Dwaine Morris doubled for both Flintstone hits. However Markley induced Fletcher to ground back to the box to leave both runners stranded.

Markley walked two and struck out eight enemy batsmen as he chalked up his third win against one loss. The setback was Flintstone's seventh without victory in the conference. The lineups:

Tops Romney Tossers, Ties For PVC Lead

Turner Is Returned Victor Over Pioneers For Second Time

ELK GARDEN, W. Va., May 5—Coach Paul Kalbaugh's Elk Garden tossers scored a 10-4 triumph over the Romney High Pioneers here today in a Potomac Valley Conference game to tie Keyser for the league lead with a 4-1 record.

Richard Turner, fastballing righthander for the Elks scored his second straight victory over the visiting Romney nine as he tossed a three-hitter and struck out 12.

Turner beat Romney April 23 at Romney by a 6-3 score. He was backed today by a 12-hit attack by his teammates, including a double and triple by Lawrence Hanlin and a two-bagger off the bat of Dwaine Murphy.

Except for a home run by Grapes with a man aboard in the third inning to account for Romney's first two scores Turner was never seriously endangered as Elk Garden tallied at least once in every inning.

Besides Murphy and Hanlin, John Bruckey and Turner joined in the heavy artillery for Elk Garden with two hits apiece. Roger Parker, Ray Haines and Grapes shared Romney's three hits.

Haines was the losing pitcher, dropping his third decision as against only one victory for Romney which now sports a 5-4 conference record.

Romney has the distinction, however, of holding the only victory over Keyser, a 12-8 decision last month. Elk Garden and Keyser will meet Keyser for the second time Friday at Elk Garden. The Tornado handed the Elks their only loss in the circuit, 10-6, April 29. The lineups:

New York DA Denies Fight Fix Probes

Three Bouts Said Being Investigated

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—District Attorney Frank Hogan's office today denied a report published in the New York Post that it was investigating three New York fights "fixed" by crooked gamblers.

Jimmy Cannon's story in the Post said the district attorney and the New York State Athletic Commission were probing three fights, two in Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway and one in Madison Square Garden.

A spokesman for Hogan said "this office is not and has not in the recent past conducted any investigation of so-called fixed fights." He said men from the office did meet with Chairman Bob Christenberry of the Athletic Commission "some time ago" and said "he turned over nothing to us that would warrant, any grand jury action."

The commission also issued a statement confirming a meeting with Hogan's staff and added it "maintains constant scrutiny over all matters pertaining to affairs under its jurisdiction."

Cannon's story said the original tip on the gambling syndicate came from Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club which promotes in the New York Garden and in various other cities. Markson turned the tip over to Christenberry who reportedly was impressed because Markson's information tallied with reports turned up by commission investigators.

"My information didn't pertain to any fight but to a betting ring," said Markson. "It was not limited to any one sport.

"I went to Christenberry with information that I thought had substance. But it just didn't stand up.

"Any time I hear rumors or talk about any fight, I go running to the commission. Often they have heard the rumors before I tell them. It is an alert, vigilant commission."

Hot Stove League Drafts 57 Little League Players

Seven Teams Name Managers For Year

The Cumberland Hot Stove League's eight teams last night drafted all 57 eligible Little League players to their rosters in a meeting held at City Hall with city recreation director Robert E. Pence in charge.

Using the National Football League and baseball leagues methods of drafting players by giving the team which finished last in 1953 the first choice and so on up the ladder each team picked seven players who last year played Little League ball.

The only team to choose more than seven was the Kiwanis Club which had eight selections. The Kiwanis team finished eighth in the circuit last year and received the extra choice.

New players who fall within the age limit of 15 years may sign up for teams at the City Rec Department in City Hall. These players will be assigned to teams in the order of their appearance to sign applications to play.

Each player will be assigned in the same order in which the drafted players were chosen, thus the first boy to sign up will be sent to the B'nai B'rith team which had second choice last night since the Kiwanis Club had last choice before the draft closed.

Managers for seven of the eight teams were also named last night. They are Kiwanis, Jack Cranor; Exchange Club, Earl Conn; B'nai B'rith, James Collins and Robert McGreevey; Optimist Club, Joseph Wolfe and Michael Cunningham; Jaycees, Vince Wegman, John Morrissey, Robert Martin and Herman Cunningham; Rotary, Lonnie Jackson; and Times-News, Howard Northcraft and Lloyd Deremer. Potomac State Tossers Blank Frostburg 2-0

Ed Wimer Outduels Harry McFarland

KEYSER, W. Va., May 5—Ed Wimer ouedueled Harry McFarland in a neat pitchers' battle here today as Potomac State's Catamounts blanked Frostburg State Teachers 2-0 in a game played in one hour and 50 minutes.

It marked the second time Potomac was returned the winner in a meeting between the two teams this year, the Cats having turned back Frostburg 9-4 April 27 at Frostburg.

Single tallies in the second and fifth innings were all Wimer needed as he tossed a five-hitter at the Frostburg batsmen and fanned seven.

Bob Beck led the second inning off with a single and moved to second when Bill Kirk erred on Ralph Holder's ground ball to short. Clyde Peer's sharp single to center scored Beck with the first Potomac run.

In the fifth with one out Jay Gorman walked and stole second. He scored moments later on Fred Lee's bingle to left with the insurance run.

Beck again led off an inning with a hit when he tripled in the sixth frame but was left stranded when McFarland bore down and retired Holder on strikes and Peer and Gene Gorman on ground balls to the infield.

The only time Wimer experienced trouble was in the ninth when Paul Bailey walked and Buddy Poland singled with one away. After Bob Kirk advanced the runners with an infield out, Wimer passed George Wolfe to load the hassocks. He got Bill Kirk on a tap back to the box to preserve his shutout.

The win was the sixth in 14 games for Potomac while Frostburg suffered its seventh loss in eight games. The lineups:

Yankees Defeat Baltimore 4-2 Despite Only Two Hits

Collins Hits Bases-Loaded Triple In 5th

Turley's Wildness Is Orioles Downfall, Lopat Wins Fourth

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP) — The New York Yankees were held to two hits today but took advantage of Bob Turley's wildness to score all their runs on one hit in the fifth inning and went on to defeat the Baltimore Orioles 4-2.

A three-bagger by Joe Collins on top of four bases on balls by the Orioles' young righthander proved Turley's undoing. The Yankees' only other hit was a bouncing single through the right side by Yogi Berra in the sixth.

The Orioles, who haven't scored more than four runs in any game this season, managed six hits off Eddie Lopat but the veteran southpaw was masterful with men on bases and breezed to his fourth victory without a defeat.

Turley, who earlier this season had lost a two-hitter to Cleveland, had a no-hitter until Collins delivered his game winning blow with the bases loaded and two out in the fifth.

The 23-year-old fireballer was enjoying a 1-0 lead on Jim Fridley's fourth inning home run when he ran into a spell of wildness. He walked Enos Slaughter and Gil McDougald, the first two batters to face him in the fifth. Andy Carey bunted into a forceout at third base but Phil Rizzuto walked to fill the bases.

Lopat laid down a neat sacrifice bunt to squeeze McDougald home with the tying run. Hank Bauer drew Turley's fourth pass of the inning and the sixth of seven walks issued by the Baltimore pitcher to again the load the bases. Collins had two strikes on him when he smashed a long liner to left center clearing the bases.

Chicago White Sox Have Eyes On Giel

CHICAGO, May 5 (AP)—The White Sox have been watching pitcher Paul Giel of Minnesota for two years, General Manager Frank Lane said today.

"And he's outstanding," Lane added. "He's a great competitor—a very intelligent youngster. If he's as smart as I think he is, he'll sign with the White Sox.

"I think he's smart enough to know that Paul Richards (Sox manager) will teach him enough to make him an effective major league pitcher. . . ."

"How high will the White Sox go for him?" chuckled Lane. "It might cost me money opening my big mouth—so I won't."

Trabert Scores In Italy Match

Net Star Advances To Third Round

ROME, May 5 (AP)—U.S. champion Tony Trabert swept into the third round of Italy's International Tennis Tournament today but his Davis Cup teammate, Vic Seixas, was having his troubles when rain stopped the proceedings.

The bull-shouldered Trabert, top-seeded in the men's division, started slowly but picked up steam as he went along to oust Steven Lazlo of Yugoslavia, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

Meanwhile, Seixas, seeded third, lost the first set to P.F. Guimaraes of Brazil and had a 3-2 lead in the second set when rain interrupted play.

Art Larsen, Budge Patty and Tony Vincent were other Americans who managed to squeeze out victories before the deluge but the downpour stopped matches involving Hal Burrows of Charlotteville, Va., and Gil Shea of Los Angeles, who were even with their opponents.

Seventh-seeded Sven Davidson of Sweden, holder of the U. S. indoor championship, fell before a young Canadian, Robert Bedard of Sherbrooke, Quebec, who won, 4-6, 3-6, 11-9, 6-3, 6-2.

The match between Burrows and Andres Hammersley, Chile, was stopped because of rain at the third set, while they were even. The score was with Burrows first, 6-1, 1-6, 5-5.

In the women's division, Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif., crushed Lea Pericoli of Italy, 6-2, 6-1. Miss Connolly, holder of the world's major championships for women, is heavily favored.

The loss was the first in three games for the Cubs whose Tippy Cecil had four singles and Bill Thompson collected a double and single. The score:

POTOMAC VALLEY	010 201 3—7	10	2

Musial's Bat Goes Into Hall Of Fame

ST. LOUIS, May 5 (AP)—The bat with which Stan Musial hit five home runs Sunday will go into baseball's Hall of Fame Museum.

Musial agreed today to donate the bat at the request of Sid Keener, national director of the museum at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Already in the museum is the pair of shoes worn by Musial when he scored his 100th run last season—the 10th year he performed the feat.

ACC Is Hopeful Of Finding New Commissioner

Spring Meeting Opens At Greensboro Friday

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 5 (AP)—The Atlantic Coast Conference, near the end of its first year of operation, holds its spring meeting here Friday hopeful that from the session will come a commissioner.

Developments at meetings tomorrow in advance of the full conference session Friday may well determine the fate of the question.

A five-man committee has been studying the problem since December when its organization was authorized by the conference and a report at this time requested.

When the ACC broke away from the old Southern Conference last spring it was agreed that Wallace Wade, Southern Conference commissioner, would serve the ACC, as well, until Jan. 1, 1955.

His services and those of the booking office, which handles game officials, were made available to the new group only until next January.

What happens after that is what may be decided here. It is certain that the ACC wants to operate under a commissioner. The choice of the man seems to be the only hitch and a meeting of the committee studying the problem here tomorrow may clear that point up so that the name of one man may be offered the conference.

Speculation has centered on three as most likely committee choices: Jim Weaver, athletic director at Wake Forest College.

O. K. Cornwell, head of the university of North Carolina's department of physical education and ACC secretary-treasurer.

Garlitz, Jenkins, Topper Are Victors

Garlitz defeated Dr. Frank Cawley 2 and 1, Jenkins topped Henry Dempsey 1 up in 18 holes, and Topper edged Benny LaNeve 1 up in 18 holes.

In third flight matches Sam Gantt topped Jack Wilkinson 4 and 3 and Dr. M. F. Garnett downed Charles Zembower 4 and 3.

League Applications Ready At Schools

City rec director Robert E. Pence said application forms for Little League, Hot Stove and Pony League baseball teams have been taken to high schools and may be secured from the school baseball coaches. The blank forms also are available at hte rec department office in City Hall.

Any boy 10 to 17 years old can play in the leagues but must sign each year. Applications are to be filled out and turned over to the rec department.

Midland Legion's Team To Practice

The Midland Junior American Legion baseball team will hold its first practice session Saturday at 1 p. m. at the Midland ball park and again on Sunday at the park, also at 1 p. m.

Manager Hugh Coleman said the team will be issued new uniforms this year and issued a call for all candidates to report. He said boys not 17 years old by the first of January and located in the Westernport-Shaft area were eligible to play.

Game Date Changed

The final game of the series between Bruce High School and Mt. Savage High School will be staged at Westernport on Tuesday, June 1, instead of Monday, May 31, as originally scheduled.

Bowie Stewards Take Purse From Kindergarten Winner

Will See Was Doped, Broke Track Record, Trainer Suspended

BOWIE, Md., May 5 (AP)—Track stewards today took away the first place purse won by Will See in the $10,000 added Kindergarten Stakes at Bowie last Saturday and said the horse showed evidence of a drug after setting a new track record.

Trainer James P. Watts was suspended and his case referred to the Maryland Racing Commission.

No action was taken against Will See's owner, Carl M. Graham.

The two-year-old ran the five furlongs of the Kindergaretn in 58 3-5 seconds, beating Auburn Farm's Powder Flask by four lengths and clipped four-fifths of a second off a record set by Equipose 22 years ago.

The stewards reported a routine urine sample taken from the colt after the race commission chemists showed the presence of procaine.

Watts, when questioned by the stewards, denied any tampering with the colt. He said Will See got a cut on his shoulder last Thursday and was given a shot of penicillin. Watts contended the penicillin contained 2 per cent procaine.

Graham explained Will See got the shoulder cut from a nail or some other sharp object in his stall.

Dr. George Palmer, a veterinarian, examined the colt and recommended the penicillin although it was less than 48 hours before the horse's scheduled start in the Kindergarten.

Graham said Palmer has agreed to go before the Racing Commission tomorrow and take full responsibility.

The stewards redistributed the $9,200 winner's share to Powder Flask. Wreck Master got $2,000 for second, Fussy Lady $1,000 for third and Last Helio $750 for fourth.

Yankees Defeat Baltimore 4-2 Despite Only Two Hits

Collins Hits Bases-Loaded Triple In 5th

Turley's Wildness Is Orioles Downfall, Lopat Wins Fourth

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP) — The New York Yankees were held to two hits today but took advantage of Bob Turley's wildness to score all their runs on one hit in the fifth inning and went on to defeat the Baltimore Orioles 4-2.

A three-bagger by Joe Collins on top of four bases on balls by the Orioles' young righthander proved Turley's undoing. The Yankees' only other hit was a bouncing single through the right side by Yogi Berra in the sixth.

The Orioles, who haven't scored more than four runs in any game this season, managed six hits off Eddie Lopat but the veteran southpaw was masterful with men on bases and breezed to his fourth victory without a defeat.

Turley, who earlier this season had lost a two-hitter to Cleveland, had a no-hitter until Collins delivered his game winning blow with the bases loaded and two out in the fifth.

The 23-year-old fireballer was enjoying a 1-0 lead on Jim Fridley's fourth inning home run when he ran into a spell of wildness. He walked Enos Slaughter and Gil McDougald, the first two batters to face him in the fifth. Andy Carey bunted into a forceout at third base but Phil Rizzuto walked to fill the bases.

Lopat laid down a neat sacrifice bunt to squeeze McDougald home with the tying run. Hank Bauer drew Turley's fourth pass of the inning and the sixth of seven walks issued by the Baltimore pitcher to again the load the bases. Collins had two strikes on him when he smashed a long liner to left center clearing the bases.

Chicago White Sox Have Eyes On Giel

CHICAGO, May 5 (AP)—The White Sox have been watching pitcher Paul Giel of Minnesota for two years, General Manager Frank Lane said today.

"And he's outstanding," Lane added. "He's a great competitor—a very intelligent youngster. If he's as smart as I think he is, he'll sign with the White Sox.

"I think he's smart enough to know that Paul Richards (Sox manager) will teach him enough to make him an effective major league pitcher. . . ."

"How high will the White Sox go for him?" chuckled Lane. "It might cost me money opening my big mouth—so I won't."

Trabert Scores In Italy Match

Net Star Advances To Third Round

ROME, May 5 (AP)—U.S. champion Tony Trabert swept into the third round of Italy's International Tennis Tournament today but his Davis Cup teammate, Vic Seixas, was having his troubles when rain stopped the proceedings.

The bull-shouldered Trabert, top-seeded in the men's division, started slowly but picked up steam as he went along to oust Steven Lazlo of Yugoslavia, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

Meanwhile, Seixas, seeded third, lost the first set to P.F. Guimaraes of Brazil and had a 3-2 lead in the second set when rain interrupted play.

Art Larsen, Budge Patty and Tony Vincent were other Americans who managed to squeeze out victories before the deluge but the downpour stopped matches involving Hal Burrows of Charlotteville, Va., and Gil Shea of Los Angeles, who were even with their opponents.

Seventh-seeded Sven Davidson of Sweden, holder of the U. S. indoor championship, fell before a young Canadian, Robert Bedard of Sherbrooke, Quebec, who won, 4-6, 3-6, 11-9, 6-3, 6-2.

The match between Burrows and Andres Hammersley, Chile, was stopped because of rain at the third set, while they were even. The score was with Burrows first, 6-1, 1-6, 5-5.

In the women's division, Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif., crushed Lea Pericoli of Italy, 6-2, 6-1. Miss Connolly, holder of the world's major championships for women, is heavily favored.

ACC Is Hopeful Of Finding New Commissioner

Spring Meeting Opens At Greensboro Friday

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 5 (AP)—The Atlantic Coast Conference, near the end of its first year of operation, holds its spring meeting here Friday hopeful that from the session will come a commissioner.

Developments at meetings tomorrow in advance of the full conference session Friday may well determine the fate of the question.

A five-man committee has been studying the problem since December when its organization was authorized by the conference and a report at this time requested.

When the ACC broke away from the old Southern Conference last spring it was agreed that Wallace Wade, Southern Conference commissioner, would serve the ACC, as well, until Jan. 1, 1955.

His services and those of the booking office, which handles game officials, were made available to the new group only until next January.

What happens after that is what may be decided here. It is certain that the ACC wants to operate under a commissioner. The choice of the man seems to be the only hitch and a meeting of the committee studying the problem here tomorrow may clear that point up so that the name of one man may be offered the conference.

Speculation has centered on three as most likely committee choices:

Jim Weaver, athletic director at Wake Forest College.

O. K. Cornwell, head of the university of North Carolina's department of physical education and ACC secretary-treasurer.

Garlitz, Jenkins, Topper Are Victors

In third flight matches Sam Gantt topped Jack Wilkinson 4 and 3 and Dr. M. F. Garnett downed Charles Zembower 4 and 3.

Bowie Stewards Take Purse From Kindergarten Winner

Will See Was Doped, Broke Track Record, Trainer Suspended

BOWIE, Md., May 5 (AP)—Track stewards today took away the first place purse won by Will See in the $10,000 added Kindergarten Stakes at Bowie last Saturday and said the horse showed evidence of a drug after setting a new track record.

Trainer James P. Watts was suspended and his case referred to the Maryland Racing Commission.

No action was taken against Will See's owner, Carl M. Graham.

The two-year-old ran the five furlongs of the Kindergaretn in 58 3-5 seconds, beating Auburn Farm's Powder Flask by four lengths and clipped four-fifths of a second off a record set by Equipose 22 years ago.

The stewards reported a routine urine sample taken from the colt after the race commission chemists showed the presence of procaine.

Watts, when questioned by the stewards, denied any tampering with the colt. He said Will See got a cut on his shoulder last Thursday and was given a shot of penicillin. Watts contended the penicillin contained 2 per cent procaine.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 5 (INS) — Bob Hope has bought the life story of the famous Eddie Foy. He's been dickering for it for a long time and finally cleared it with the Foy family.

However, neither Charley, Eddie, Jr., Brynie, nor any of the "seven little Foys" (who are now the seven big Foys) will be in the picture. Bob says he plans to make it in July at Paramount.

Just had a telephone call from Frank Rosenberg, who tells me he's bought "Miracle in the Rain," Ben Hecht's classic love story.

Frank says the picture starts July 8 in New York, with the interiors made here in August.

Frank is off for New York next week to talk to Audrey Hepburn. I know he can't get Audrey, so how about Pier Angeli or Jean Simmons? The story is that of a boy and a girl and faith.

The powerful William Barrett novel, "Left Hand of God," has been bought by 20th from RKO. Humphrey Bogart is reading the script.

The book so impressed Howard Hawks at the time it came out, that he suggested that RKO buy it. It deals with a man who masquerades as a priest in a small village. He becomes very loved by the people, and when he falls in love with a girl he leaves the village and drops his disguise.

My cousin, Gordon Maynard, talks volumes about the Terrace Theatre in Robbinsdale, Minnesota, just outside of Minneapolis. Two brothers, Sidney and William Volk, own it.

"When you enter the theatre," said Gordon, "there's a counter in the foyer with an attractive young lady telling yo the picture is starting; or that you're early and would you like to go into the lounge and be served with hot coffee, doughnuts or sandwiches, with no extra charge."

The night Gordon was there two people came in late and the show was nearly over, but the Volks ran the whole picture for just the two people.

Sidney Volk said, "We stay open until the last person leaves — we never want a dissatisfied patron."

Their business is the best for miles around. The theatre has parking facilities for 1,000 cars and is built on 15 acres of land.

"So, if you go to Minnesota, visit Mr. Volk," says Gordon.

The marriage of Ursula Thiess and Robert Taylor won't take place until August. Bob has two pictures to make in succession.

Just as soon as he finishes "Rogue Cop" he and Eleanor Parker and Victor McLaglen leave for Northern California on location for "Many Rivers to Cross."

Victor McLaglen was just set to play Eleanor's father. He's a rough, tough guy who forces Bob to marry the beautiful Eleanor.

Cameron Mitchell, who had his heart set on getting the top role in "The Egyptian" after Marlon Brando walked out, is getting a wonderful consolation prize. Cam will play Brando's brother, Joseph Bonaparte, in "Desiree" for 20th.

Edmund Purdom was given "The Egyptian," and Purdom, who is the hottest newcomer in years, may get "Ben Hur." This is because Robert Taylor has made so many pictures in Europe and he wants to stay home and get married.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The Joe Cottens return to Hollywood June 1. With Maggie Sullavan out of the cast of "Sabrina Fair," Joe decided to come back to the movies.

Isabel Kattleman, niece of Beldon Kattleman, was married to Earl Seldon, toy distributor, on Monday and they're honeymooning in Las Vegas.

Had a glimpse of Angela Cameron (Mrs. Rod) at the Wild Goose Restaurant. She makes that place her headquarters and never misses a day.

Aldo Ray and Anne Francis have been made campaign leaders in Hollywood to raise money to build a chapel in memory of Father Maguire, who originated the famous phrase, "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition."

Tony Curtis didn't get the role of Joseph in "Joseph and His Brethren," but he says he's flattered because his bosses demanded Rita Hayworth in return for him.

Mona Freeman joins the very blonde class when she moves to Warners for "Battle Cry."

It's all but settled for Gordon MacRae to play Curly in "Oklahoma" — that is, all but the actual signing.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

If you are extra-tall, select clothes that cut your height but at the same time flatter your weight.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

American women, collectively, are growing taller. But if you're an extra-tall girl right now, you can't wait for everybody else to catch up to you, and you have clothes or figure problems that require solution today, not tomorrow.

Your height should be a matter of pride. No fair slouching to conceal that extra inch! You want to stand just as straight and tall as your shorter sister, and to look just as smart by wearing the clothes becoming to you.

No matter what the fashion of the day, choose the items for your own wardrobe that flatter you as an individual. I do not mean that you should disregard the current styles, simply select them with discretion.

Tall and Slim

If you are very tall and slim, wear horizontal lines: round necklines and collars, softly rounded shoulders, wide and contrasting belts, short jackets, pleated or circular skirts. Avoid the beltless dress, the deep "V" neckline, the narrow or tubular skirt, buttons lined-up vertically.

If you are tall and not-so-slender, your choices will be different. You will look your most attractive in vertical and diagonal lines. Choose the pointed collar, the set-in sleeve, vertical stitching, self belts of medium width, diagonally-placed trimmings (pockets, for example), skirts that fall with easy grace. Resist buying a dress with round neck or large collar, a jacket that is either very short or very long, a skirt that is generously pleated, a wide belt.

Whether your weight is ample or lacking, do be certain you underline your fashions with the most carefully chosen of foundations.

Curves help clothes to fit, and curves can be added just as they can be subtracted. A contour brassiere lends attractive roundness to the slim figure; a girdle or brassiere with cinch waist relieves the straightness of your silhouette.

For subtraction, choose a brassiere long in line to trim the midriff as well as mold the bosom, a girdle with extra hip control via firm paneling, a corselet that balances your measurements.

Proportions for tall girls vary. Some talls have height through the torso and their legs are short; others are short-waisted but have long legs. The variations are as numerous as the tall girls! So it pays to devote an extra few moments to the selection of both foundations and outer finery, to be fitted correctly in the styles that minimize the appearance of height yet encourage "standing tall."

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 5 (INS) — Bob Hope has bought the life story of the famous Eddie Foy. He's been dickering for it for a long time and finally cleared it with the Foy family.

However, neither Charley, Eddie, Jr., Brynie, nor any of the "seven little Foys" (who are now the seven big Foys) will be in the picture. Bob says he plans to make it in July at Paramount.

He'll do the "Road" picture with Bing Crosby later, but this won't be "Road to the Moon" — it will be a trip somewhere else.

Just had a telephone call from Frank Rosenberg, who tells me he's bought "Miracle in the Rain," Ben Hecht's classic love story.

Frank says the picture starts July 8 in New York, with the interiors made here in August.

Frank is off for New York next week to talk to Audrey Hepburn. I know he can't get Audrey, so how about Pier Angeli or Jean Simmons? The story is that of a boy and a girl and faith.

The powerful William Barrett novel, "Left Hand of God," has been bought by 20th from RKO. Humphrey Bogart is reading the script.

The book so impressed Howard Hawks at the time it came out, that he suggested that RKO buy it. It deals with a man who masquerades as a priest in a small village. He becomes very loved by the people, and when he falls in love with a girl he leaves the village and drops his disguise.

It has a spiritual aspect, much as does "Shadow of the Image," Barrett's new novel.

My cousin, Gordon Maynard, talks volumes about the Terrace Theatre in Robbinsdale, Minnesota, just outside of Minneapolis. Two brothers, Sidney and William Volk, own it.

"When you enter the theatre," said Gordon, "there's a counter in the foyer with an attractive young lady telling yo the picture is starting; or that you're early and would you like to go into the lounge and be served with hot coffee, doughnuts or sandwiches, with no extra charge."

The night Gordon was there two people came in late and the show was nearly over, but the Volks ran the whole picture for just the two people.

Sidney Volk said, "We stay open until the last person leaves — we never want a dissatisfied patron."

Their business is the best for miles around. The theatre has parking facilities for 1,000 cars and is built on 15 acres of land.

"So, if you go to Minnesota, visit Mr. Volk," says Gordon.

The marriage of Ursula Thiess and Robert Taylor won't take place until August. Bob has two pictures to make in succession.

Just as soon as he finishes "Rogue Cop" he and Eleanor Parker and Victor McLaglen leave for Northern California on location for "Many Rivers to Cross."

Victor McLaglen was just set to play Eleanor's father. He's a rough, tough guy who forces Bob to marry the beautiful Eleanor.

Cameron Mitchell, who had his heart set on getting the top role in "The Egyptian" after Marlon Brando walked out, is getting a wonderful consolation prize. Cam will play Brando's brother, Joseph Bonaparte, in "Desiree" for 20th.

Edmund Purdom was given "The Egyptian," and Purdom, who is the hottest newcomer in years, may get "Ben Hur." This is because Robert Taylor has made so many pictures in Europe and he wants to stay home and get married.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The Joe Cottens return to Hollywood June 1. With Maggie Sullavan out of the cast of "Sabrina Fair," Joe decided to come back to the movies.

Angela Clark, attractive young character actress who plays Edmund Purdom's adopted mother in "The Egyptian," suffered second degree burns while helping her husband pour creosote into the foundation of their new home.

Isabel Kattleman, niece of Beldon Kattleman, was married to Earl Seldon, toy distributor, on Monday and they're honeymooning in Las Vegas.

Had a glimpse of Angela Cameron (Mrs. Rod) at the Wild Goose Restaurant. She makes that place her headquarters and never misses a day.

Aldo Ray and Anne Francis have been made campaign leaders in Hollywood to raise money to build a chapel in memory of Father Maguire, who originated the famous phrase, "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition."

Tony Curtis didn't get the role of Joseph in "Joseph and His Brethren," but he says he's flattered because his bosses demanded Rita Hayworth in return for him.

Mona Freeman joins the very blonde class when she moves to Warners for "Battle Cry."

It's all but settled for Gordon MacRae to play Curly in "Oklahoma" — that is, all but the actual signing.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

If you are extra-tall, select clothes that cut your height but at the same time flatter your weight.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

American women, collectively, are growing taller. But if you're an extra-tall girl right now, you can't wait for everybody else to catch up to you, and you have clothes or figure problems that require solution today, not tomorrow.

Your height should be a matter of pride. No fair slouching to conceal that extra inch! You want to stand just as straight and tall as your shorter sister, and to look just as smart by wearing the clothes becoming to you.

No matter what the fashion of the day, choose the items for your own wardrobe that flatter you as an individual. I do not mean that you should disregard the current styles, simply select them with discretion.

Tall and Slim

If you are very tall and slim, wear horizontal lines; round necklines and collars, softly rounded shoulders, wide and contrasting belts, short jackets, pleated or circular skirts. Avoid the beltless dress, the deep "V" neckline, the narrow or tubular skirt, buttons lined-up vertically.

If you are tall and not-so-slender, your choices will be different. You will look your most attractive in vertical and diagonal lines. Choose the pointed collar, the set-in sleeve, vertical stitching, self belts of medium width, diagonally-placed trimmings (pockets, for example), skirts that fall with easy grace. Resist buying a dress with round neck or large collar, a jacket that is either very short or very long, a skirt that is generously pleated, a wide belt.

Whether your weight is ample or lacking, do be certain you underline your fashions with the most carefully chosen of foundations.

Curves help clothes to fit, and curves can be added just as they can be subtracted. A contour brassiere lends attractive roundness to the slim figure; a girdle or brassiere with cinch waist relieves the straightness of your silhouette.

For subtraction, choose a brassiere long in line to trim the midriff as well as mold the bosom, a girdle with extra hip control via firm paneling, a corselet that balances your measurements.

Proportions for tall girls vary. Some talls have height through the torso and their legs are short; others are short-waisted but have long legs. The variations are as numerous as the tall girls! So it pays to devote an extra few moments to the selection of both foundations and outer finery, to be fitted correctly in the styles that minimize the appearance of height yet encourage "standing tall."

"FIGURED FOR YOU"

Specially prepared by figure and fashion experts EXCLUSIVELY for readers of this column, FIGURED FOR YOU, gives detailed instructions and illustrates how to select foundation garments that provide comeliness, control and healthful comfort for your individual type of figure. Send 10c in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper for FIGURED FOR YOU.

IT JUST DOESN'T PAY

THERE is an idea abroad in the world of bridge that an average pair of fair players, when they meet a great star, should try to upset the normal course of events with unorthodox tactics of one type or another. Of course such highjinks will pay once in a great while. But more often the superior performer will read from the developments a number of things that enable him to get a better result than would otherwise come. Instead of monkeyshines, the fair player will usually make out better if he employs the methods with which he ordinarily gets his best scores in the games where he most frequently participates.

West would not ordinarily even think of doubling with that hand, just barely above a mere average. But his pair was in its first big tournament and was meeting one of the greatest cardsmen in history, Charles H. Goren, of Philadelphia. So he thought the situation required special treatment. That's exactly what it received, after the spade bid superinduced by the double gave a bunch of additional information to the master declarer.

The unstandard lead of the spade 3 failed to fool Mr. Goren, who because of the double counted West for all other high cards after East played the Q, which the K won. Acting exactly as if he had peeked into West's hand, he sent through the diamond J, then the 10 and finessed the Q. The spade 8 was led to the 9, which was big enough to drive out the A. Back came the spade 2 to the J, whereupon the club J was sent through, the 10 covered by the Q and K, the diamond A scored, heart 2 led to the K, whereupon the club A and 5 and heart A completed an unbid small slam for a terrific top score, as at no other table did the defense give the declarer facts which he could use so devastatingly.

Market's Advance Halted; Rails Eke Out Small Gain

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP) — The Stock Market sold lower today in late trading after starting out with a confident swing ahead.

The market had advanced for five straight sessions, and at the start today it looked as though it would make it six straight.

Railroads managed to eke out a small net gain as did the utilities. Coppers were higher along with many oils. The steels remained mixed most of the day but closed slightly lower. Motors were mixed. Aircrafts were the hardest hit of the major groups. Chemicals were down.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 10 cents at $122.30. Yesterday it advanced 60 cents to a new high for the year of $122.40, the best level for the average since April 23, 1930.

National Theaters was the day's most active issue up ⅝ at 7 on 31,400 shares. It was quite active in blocks including one of 7,500 shares at 7.

Pan American World Airways was second most active up ¼ at 11⅜. Directors declared a dividend of 20 cents, making 40 cents so far this year as against 65 cents paid last year. General Motors ran contrary to others in its division and finished as third most active up 1⅛ at 71.

Market's Advance Halted; Rails Eke Out Small Gain

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP) — The Stock Market sold lower today in late trading after starting out with a confident swing ahead.

The market had advanced for five straight sessions, and at the start today it looked as though it would make it six straight.

Railroads managed to eke out a small net gain as did the utilities. Coppers were higher along with many oils. The steels remained mixed most of the day but closed slightly lower. Motors were mixed. Aircrafts were the hardest hit of the major groups. Chemicals were down.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 10 cents at $122.30. Yesterday it advanced 60 cents to a new high for the year of $122.40, the best level for the average since April 23, 1930.

National Theaters was the day's most active issue up ⅝ at 7 on 31,400 shares. It was quite active in blocks including one of 7,500 shares at 7.

Pan American World Airways was second most active up ¼ at 11⅜. Directors declared a dividend of 20 cents, making 40 cents so far this year as against 65 cents paid last year. General Motors ran contrary to others in its division and finished as third most active up 1⅛ at 71.

Glass Plant Plans Being Prepared

Pittsburgh Retains Designing Firm

Lockwood Green, one of the country's foremost consulting engineering firms, has been retained by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company to design and prepare specifications for a plant at North Branch.

Reports to this effect were confirmed yesterday by Albert H. Hargreaves, industrial promotion director for the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

He elaborated only to the extent that plans and specifications being prepared by Lockwood Green, whose main office is in New York City, will be designed specifically for the site at North Branch which consists of some 600 acres. Deeds for the transfer of some of the property to Pittsburgh Plate already have been filed among the land records of Allegany County.

Harry B. Higgins, president of Pittsburgh Plate, has revealed that the company is planning a twin-grinding plate glass plant at North Branch although the company's board of directors has not yet appropriated funds for its construction.

Plan New Process

Higgins disclosed at that time that the company's research department hopes to have perfected a system in connection with twin grinding which also will permit twin polishing, the latter being a completely new process. Simply stated, this system will permit grinding both sides of a sheet of plate glass simultaneously. Polishing both sides at the same time would follow.

In confirming the report that Lockwood Green has been retained to design and prepare specifications for the plant, Hargreaves also pointed out that William J. Hiser, executive vice president of the firm, will be chief engineer of the job here. Project engineer for Pittsburgh Plate will be William L. Heineman.

Coincidentally, one of Hiser's top assistants and one of Lockwood Green's key men, Hargreaves said, will be S. B. Roberts, formerly a chief engineer for the Celanese Corporation of America.

Helped Expand Amcelle —

Roberts came to Cumberland in March 1929 as assistant plant engineer at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America, and was an associate of Fred T. Small, who recently retired from Celanese as a vice president after assignments as plant engineer and later as manager of the Amcelle plant.

Roberts was in charge of important engineering and design assignments in connection with the growth of the Amcelle plant, which began operations on Christmas Day in 1924, and was rapidly expanded over a number of years until it became the top producer of acetate yarn in the United States.

He was sent to Narrows, Va., in July 1939, where he helped design and construct the Celco plant, and went to the Celanese Corporation's New York office in 1942 to become chief engineer for the company.

Mine Rails Used To Strengthen Valley St. Span

Bridge Demolition Work Is Progressing

Perfectly preserved steel rails, believed to have been rolled by the United States Rail Mill which once stood on the site of the B&O Bolt and Forge Shops here, have been uncovered in the demolition of the old Valley Street Bridge.

The rails, designed for use in mines, were used by the Vang Construction Company to strengthen the reinforced concrete bridge built across Wills Creek in 1916.

The steel rails came to light recently as the S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company continued to demolish the bridge which is to be replaced by a single-span steel bridge in connection with the Flood Protection project.

Work On Schedule

Officials said the demolition work is progressing on schedule, and that the firm is within eight feet of the elevation for the north abutment, adjoining the Bowman property on North Mechanic Street, and that old masonry is being removed on the south side of the span.

The rails range in weight from eight, 12 and 15.8 pounds to the yard, according to Mayor Roy W. Eves.

They look like toy track when compared to the big rails which are used on the B&O Railroad, which has been laying 140 pound track on all main lines since 1948.

Officials said it is possible the Vang Construction Company, which had interests in a number of mines in this area, has stocks of the rails on hand and used them to reinforce the bridge.

Officials believe the rails were rolled by the United States Rail Mill, which was located on the present site of the rolling mill unit of the B&O Bolt and Forge Shops until the early 1920s.

Plaque Is Saved

For a time, the building abandoned by the rail mill was utilized by the B&O as a car shop, and later was selected as the site for the rolling mill, which now produces bar and angle iron from reclaimed iron and steel.

City officials have salvaged the plaque from the Valley Street Bridge and plan to place it, with a new plaque, on the new bridge, according to Mayor Eves.

The marker shows the bridge was built in 1916 when Dr. Thomas Koon was mayor. Members of the Council were Oscar Eyerman, Adam Lebeck, C. Frank Keyser, and Harry L. Smith. David A. Robb was city attorney; Ralph Rizer, city engineer, and B. F. Davis, the consulting engineer for the span.

Magistrate Asks More Witnesses In Motor Case

Saying conflicting testimony pointed to the need of additional witnesses and investigation of possible perjury, Trial Magistrate Donald W. Mason yesterday continued the hearing on a motor vehicle case until Friday at 2 p. m.

The action was taken after a lengthy hearing in Trial Magistrates Court in connection with charges of violating three motor vehicle laws placed against Ernest Eugene Bennett, of Bedford, Pa.

Bennett was arrested here Saturday by Officers John G. Powers and Walter P. Dennison after a driver informed city police he had been crowded off Bedford Road by another car, and supplied them with a license number.

The officers told Magistrate Mason they found the car parked on Baltimore Avenue after it had sideswiped another car operated by William McLucky, Route 2.

The officers said when they reached the Bennett car it was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Otis Boor, Bedford, and that Bennett was in a nearby drug store. When Bennett returned, he was charged with state motor vehicle law violations.

At yesterday's hearing, Bennett said Mrs. Boor was driving, and pleaded not guilty to all charges.

Boor also testified his wife was driving at the time of the accidents.

Another witness, Harry M. Whisner, 304 Virginia Avenue, told Mason he also was forced off Bedford Road and that a man was driving the car.

Treiber Given Four Months In County Lockup

Draws $700 Fine On Bookmaking Charge

Frank Treiber, 448 Bedford Street, who pleaded guilty to a 15-count bookmaking indictment when he appeared in Circuit Court April 19, yesterday was sentenced to four months in the County Jail and fined $700 by Associated Judge George Henderson.

Sentencing by Judge Henderson in April was deferred until this week because Treiber was ill.

In passing sentence yesterday afternoon, Judge Henderson said Treiber was in the same position with the men who placed bets with him—if they lost they must suffer the consequences.

Judge Henderson recounted recent convictions of others engaged in similar actions as he imposed the sentence and fine.

He added that Treiber is being confined to County Jail instead of the Maryland House of Correction because of his health. By being in the local jail Treiber will be able to contact his personal physician if necessary, Judge Henderson said.

Treiber and Curtis W. Masenheimer, Southern Hotel, were arrested March 19 in a raid on the Queen City Pool Room, Liberty Street, by Detective Lt. James V. Van and five patrolmen of the City Police Department. Various pieces of gabling paraphernalia were confiscated, along with about $780 in cash.

On the day of the trial Masenheimer was in the Court House, but disappeared before the hearing was called. His bond of $500, posted by a local businessman, was forfeited.

While on Savage Mountain they also will see thinning and improvement projects, the lumber from which goes for mine props and pulpwood. They also will inspect salvage cuttings of Savage Mountain timber made necessary by the severe ice storms of 1948 and 1953.

The board members then will go to Herrington Manor Recreation Area to spend Saturday night. Sunday morning they will view a forest tree plantation at Herrington Manor and timber stand improvements at Swallow Falls. The tour will end about noon and the visitors will head for home.

Raccoon Escapes From Park Zoo

One of a pair of raccoons kept in the Constitution Park zoo escaped yesterday afternoon after a hole was cut in a heavy wire cage.

Robert R. Golden, superintendent, said the animal escaped from a 10-inch square hole which bore the marks of wire cutters.

He said several boys visiting the park discovered the hole in the wire and closed it with string before the other raccoon was able to escape.

Golden said it is possible the animal was trapped by whoever cut the hole in the cage, adding that the hollow log which was the temporary home of the raccoon had been pulled toward the opening.

Remaining in the park zoo at present are two recently acquired foxes, three deer, one bear and one raccoon.

Chamber To Entertain Two Traveling Student Groups

Two groups of school students have scheduled stops in Cumberland during educational trips to Washington, in order to visit historical sites and landmarks of both cities, Anthony Saeli, manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, has announced.

The first of these two groups, 71 strong, will be sponsors and members of the Morgantown (W. Va.) High School safety patrol which will visit the "Queen City of the Alleghenies" this Sunday while returning from a visit to the nation's capital, Saeli said.

The Morgantown troop will arrive in Cumberland at 1:30 p. m. by train from Washington and will have luncheon at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. From there they will spend the afternoon visiting the many historical sites and attractions Cumberland has to offer.

Saeli, pointing out that Cumberland is a natural stopping-off place for these school groups which annually take educational tours to Washington area, declared Cumberland will welcome visits by such groups, adding that "Much of the nation's early history took place right here in this valley."

The visit of the Morgantown school patrol will be followed May 21 by an overnight visit of 40 boys and girls and adult chaperones from the Senior Class of Cardington (Ohio) High School. This group also will be returning from a tour of the nation's capital and will arrive here in the evening for dinner and an evening program by the Chamber. The group will visit the city's historic sites on the following day before continuing to Ohio.

These visits, Saeli said, are all a part of the continuous publicity program being sponsored by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce in an effort to promote the city as a historical center and excellent trading locale.

Light Frost Is Forecast For District

A second attack by Jack Frost in his current cold snap was expected early this morning by fruit growers of the Tri-State area who braced themselves for the consequences.

Some damage was reported yesterday when the first wave of frost hit area orchards and truck farms. The weatherman forecasts mostly sunny skies today with somewhat warmer temperatures during the afternoon.

Tuesday night's cold snap sent temperatures to the freezing mark and below in some sections of the state, but reports indicated only slight damage to orchards and garden crops in some low areas.

Henry J. Miller Jr., vice president and general manager of the Consolidated Orchards, reported that apples in the low spots were hit by the frost, although the damage caused was not termed major.

Robert R. Golden, official Weather Bureau observer, said he had reports that those gardeners planting beans, tomatoes and other vegetables were hurt by the frost.

The Weather

Topcoats were a common sight on the streets of Cumberland yesterday as the chilly breezes visited the city for the second day. The high temperature recorded at Constitution Park was 61 degrees with a low reading of 31 degrees. At 8 p. m. yesterday the thermometer registered 53 degrees and humidity at 6 p. m. was 65 per cent. Forecast for today is sunny skies with somewhat warmer temperatures during the afternoon.

West Side Flood Wall Contract Is Awarded

Wright Contracting Firm To Do Work

Construction of the West Side Flood Wall, one of two contracts which is to be let this summer in the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Protection Program, is slated to get under way here within the next few weeks.

City officials were informed yesterday that the contract for the project, which is to cost about $200,000, has been awarded to the Wright Contracting Company, of Columbus, Ga.

The announcement was made by officials of the Washington District, Corps of Engineers, in a conversation with Thomas B. Finan, city attorney.

To Run 780 Feet

The contract will include the construction of some 780 feet of concrete flood wall running from the rear of the Moose home to beyond the Gas Company property on Water Street.

The new flood control work will get under way as the E. J. Albrecht Company, of Chicago, is completing the final stages of its Industrial Dam contract.

This project is about completed, since remaining work consists only of removing coffer dams on the West Virginia side of the dam, and the placing of rip rap and derrick stone along the banks of the stream.

Second Award Planned

Several weeks ago, the Albrecht firm completed the first of four contracts to be let during the $17,000,000 flood project in providing a high speed channel for Wills Creek. Other phases of the Wills Creek improvement plan are to be deferred until the Potomac River channel is ready to carry off the greater volume of water which will surge through the improved creek channel.

One more contract is to be let in the flood protection program this year, and will be one of the phases of the Potomac River work.

North End Water Tank Is Tested

City officials said the North End water tank passed an operation test yesterday and may be placed into service by tonight.

Water Commissioner William J. Edwards said the tank boosted pressure to satisfactory levels in the North Cumberland area when it was tested yesterday.

The 75,000-gallon tank is being drained in order to reduce the concentration of chlorine which was used to sterlize lines, and is to be flushed and refilled.

The installation was inspected yesterday by Commissioner Edwards, Mayor Roy W. Eves and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum.

Wild Dogs Reported Killing Sheep In Little Orleans Area

Charles A. Linaburg has reported to authorities that a pack of wild or stray dogs has been killing sheep on his farm at Little Orleans.

Linaburg, who is agent at the local bus terminal and resides on Frederick Street extended, explained that he owns a farm in the Little Orleans area where he has a flock of about 100 sheep.

His caretaker called and reported that some of his sheep and lambs had been killed and others badly mangled by dogs.

Linaburg investigated and said he notified county authorities. He claims the county officials he contacted told him there is a law against allowing dogs to run wild and also a law against dogs killing sheep. The officials told him, he alleges, that it has been quite difficult to enforce these statutes.

Linaburg said other farmers have complained of the wild dogs, and game wardens have also reported that the dogs are killing young game, chasing deer and generally make a nuisance of themselves.

Linaburg is posting his land and has instructed his caretaker to shoot any dogs found molesting his sheep. He said he has had the sheep farm about six years and on two or three previous occasions had trouble with dogs, but this week's foray is the worst one yet.

Glass Plant Plans Being Prepared

Pittsburgh Retains Designing Firm

Lockwood Green, one of the country's foremost consulting engineering firms, has been retained by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company to design and prepare specifications for a plant at North Branch.

Reports to this effect were confirmed yesterday by Albert H. Hargreaves, industrial promotion director for the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

He elaborated only to the extent that plans and specifications being prepared by Lockwood Green, whose main office is in New York City, will be designed specifically for the site at North Branch which consists of some 600 acres. Deeds for the transfer of some of the property to Pittsburgh Plate already have been filed among the land records of Allegany County.

Harry B. Higgins, president of Pittsburgh Plate, has revealed that the company is planning a twin-grinding plate glass plant at North Branch although the company's board of directors has not yet appropriated funds for its construction.

Plan New Process

Higgins disclosed at that time that the company's research department hopes to have perfected a system in connection with twin grinding which also will permit twin polishing, the latter being a completely new process. Simply stated, this system will permit grinding both sides of a sheet of plate glass simultaneously. Polishing both sides at the same time would follow.

In confirming the report that Lockwood Green has been retained to design and prepare specifications for the plant, Hargreaves also pointed out that William J. Hiser, executive vice president of the firm, will be chief engineer of the job here. Project engineer for Pittsburgh Plate will be William L. Heineman.

Coincidentally, one of Hiser's top assistants and one of Lockwood Green's key men, Hargreaves said, will be S. B. Roberts, formerly a chief engineer for the Celanese Corporation of America.

Helped Expand Amcelle —

Roberts came to Cumberland in March 1929 as assistant plant engineer at the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America, and was an associate of Fred T. Small, who recently retired from Celanese as a vice president after assignments as plant engineer and later as manager of the Amcelle plant.

Roberts was in charge of important engineering and design assignments in connection with the growth of the Amcelle plant, which began operations on Christmas Day in 1924, and was rapidly expanded over a number of years until it became the top producer of acetate yarn in the United States.

He was sent to Narrows, Va., in July 1939, where he helped design and construct the Celco plant, and went to the Celanese Corporation's New York office in 1942 to become chief engineer for the company.

Mine Rails Used To Strengthen Valley St. Span

Bridge Demolition Work Is Progressing

Perfectly preserved steel rails, believed to have been rolled by the United States Rail Mill which once stood on the site of the B&O Bolt and Forge Shops here, have been uncovered in the demolition of the old Valley Street Bridge.

The rails, designed for use in mines, were used by the Vang Construction Company to strengthen the reinforced concrete bridge built across Wills Creek in 1916.

The steel rails came to light recently as the S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company continued to demolish the bridge which is to be replaced by a single-span steel bridge in connection with the Flood Protection project.

Work On Schedule

Officials said the demolition work is progressing on schedule, and that the firm is within eight feet of the elevation for the north abutment, adjoining the Bowman property on North Mechanic Street, and that old masonry is being removed on the south side of the span.

The rails range in weight from eight, 12 and 15.8 pounds to the yard, according to Mayor Roy W. Eves.

They look like toy track when compared to the big rails which are used on the B&O Railroad, which has been laying 140 pound track on all main lines since 1948.

Officials said it is possible the Vang Construction Company, which had interests in a number of mines in this area, has stocks of the rails on hand and used them to reinforce the bridge.

Officials believe the rails were rolled by the United States Rail Mill, which was located on the present site of the rolling mill unit of the B&O Bolt and Forge Shops until the early 1920s.

Plaque Is Saved

For a time, the building abandoned by the rail mill was utilized by the B&O as a car shop, and later was selected as the site for the rolling mill, which now produces bar and angle iron from reclaimed iron and steel.

City officials have salvaged the plaque from the Valley Street Bridge and plan to place it, with a new plaque, on the new bridge, according to Mayor Eves.

The marker shows the bridge was built in 1916 when Dr. Thomas Koon was mayor. Members of the Council were Oscar Eyerman, Adam Lebeck, C. Frank Keyser, and Harry L. Smith. David A. Robb was city attorney; Ralph Rizer, city engineer, and B. F. Davis, the consulting engineer for the span.

Magistrate Asks More Witnesses In Motor Case

Saying conflicting testimony pointed to the need of additional witnesses and investigation of possible perjury, Trial Magistrate Donald W. Mason yesterday continued the hearing on a motor vehicle case until Friday at 2 p. m.

The action was taken after a lengthy hearing in Trial Magistrates Court in connection with charges of violating three motor vehicle laws placed against Ernest Eugene Bennett, of Bedford, Pa.

Bennett was arrested here Saturday by Officers John G. Powers and Walter P. Dennison after a driver informed city police he had been crowded off Bedford Road by another car, and supplied them with a license number.

The officers told Magistrate Mason they found the car parked on Baltimore Avenue after it had sideswiped another car operated by William McLucky, Route 2.

The officers said when they reached the Bennett car it was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Otis Boor, Bedford, and that Bennett was in a nearby drug store. When Bennett returned, he was charged with state motor vehicle law violations.

At yesterday's hearing, Bennett said Mrs. Boor was driving, and pleaded not guilty to all charges.

Boor also testified his wife was driving at the time of the accidents.

Another witness, Harry M. Whisner, 304 Virginia Avenue, told Mason he also was forced off Bedford Road and that a man was driving the car.

Treiber Given Four Months In County Lockup

Draws $700 Fine On Bookmaking Charge

Frank Treiber, 448 Bedford Street, who pleaded guilty to a 15-count bookmaking indictment when he appeared in Circuit Court April 19, yesterday was sentenced to four months in the County Jail and fined $700 by Associated Judge George Henderson.

Sentencing by Judge Henderson in April was deferred until this week because Treiber was ill.

In passing sentence yesterday afternoon, Judge Henderson said Treiber was in the same position with the men who placed bets with him—if they lost they must suffer the consequences.

Judge Henderson recounted recent convictions of others engaged in similar actions as he imposed the sentence and fine.

He added that Treiber is being confined to County Jail instead of the Maryland House of Correction because of his health. By being in the local jail Treiber will be able to contact his personal physician if necessary, Judge Henderson said.

Treiber and Curtis W. Masenheimer, Southern Hotel, were arrested March 19 in a raid on the Queen City Pool Room, Liberty Street, by Detective Lt. James V. Van and five patrolmen of the City Police Department. Various pieces of gabling paraphernalia were confiscated, along with about $780 in cash.

On the day of the trial Masenheimer was in the Court House, but disappeared before the hearing was called. His bond of $500, posted by a local businessman, was forfeited.

Raccoon Escapes From Park Zoo

One of a pair of raccoons kept in the Constitution Park zoo escaped yesterday afternoon after a hole was cut in a heavy wire cage.

Robert R. Golden, superintendent, said the animal escaped from a 10-inch square hole which bore the marks of wire cutters.

He said several boys visiting the park discovered the hole in the wire and closed it with string before the other raccoon was able to escape.

Golden said it is possible the animal was trapped by whoever cut the hole in the cage, adding that the hollow log which was the temporary home of the raccoon had been pulled toward the opening.

Remaining in the park zoo at present are two recently acquired foxes, three deer, one bear and one raccoon.

Light Frost Is Forecast For District

A second attack by Jack Frost in his current cold snap was expected early this morning by fruit growers of the Tri-State area who braced themselves for the consequences.

Some damage was reported yesterday when the first wave of frost hit area orchards and truck farms. The weatherman forecasts mostly sunny skies today with somewhat warmer temperatures during the afternoon.

Tuesday night's cold snap sent temperatures to the freezing mark and below in some sections of the state, but reports indicated only slight damage to orchards and garden crops in some low areas.

Henry J. Miller Jr., vice president and general manager of the Consolidated Orchards, reported that apples in the low spots were hit by the frost, although the damage caused was not termed major.

Robert R. Golden, official Weather Bureau observer, said he had reports that those gardeners planting beans, tomatoes and other vegetables were hurt by the frost.

West Side Flood Wall Contract Is Awarded

Wright Contracting Firm To Do Work

Construction of the West Side Flood Wall, one of two contracts which is to be let this summer in the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Protection Program, is slated to get under way here within the next few weeks.

City officials were informed yesterday that the contract for the project, which is to cost about $200,000, has been awarded to the Wright Contracting Company, of Columbus, Ga.

The announcement was made by officials of the Washington District, Corps of Engineers, in a conversation with Thomas B. Finan, city attorney.

To Run 780 Feet

The contract will include the construction of some 780 feet of concrete flood wall running from the rear of the Moose home to beyond the Gas Company property on Water Street.

The new flood control work will get under way as the E. J. Albrecht Company, of Chicago, is completing the final stages of its Industrial Dam contract.

This project is about completed, since remaining work consists only of removing coffer dams on the West Virginia side of the dam, and the placing of rip rap and derrick stone along the banks of the stream.

Second Award Planned

Several weeks ago, the Albrecht firm completed the first of four contracts to be let during th $17,000,000 flood project in providing a high speed channel for Wills Creek. Other phases of the Wills Creek improvement plan are to be deferred until the Potomac River channel is ready to carry off the greater volume of water which will surge through the improved creek channel.

One more contract is to be let in the flood protection program this year, and will be one of the phases of the Potomac River work.

The contractor is expected to begin moving in for the flood wall job between May 15 and 20.
